Today in Europe

By Randolph Churchill

LONDON.—Small countries which wish to remain neutral when all the great powers are at war have a difficult role to play. Pressure is brought on them by both sides and their life is bound to be uneasy in the extreme.

De Valera's neutrality was based on two considerations. It was partly intended as a protest against Partition and a proof to the world of the complete independence of Ireland. Even more, De Valera was animated by a sincere desire to spare his country the horrors of war. Irishmen are not slow to point out that even great powers like Russia and the United States remained neutral until they were attacked; they are puzzled that they should be criticized for successfully pursuing a policy to which so many other countries, albeit unsuccessfully, aspired.

Randolph Churchill

At the outset of the war, De Valera told the Germans that he did not propose to allow Ireland to be used as a base for Britain to attack Germany, or for Germany to attack Britain. For the rest, he intended to interpret Irish neutrality in such a way as best served Irish interests. He made it plain that Irish neutrality was not based on hostility to Great Britain and his administration has consistently followed a policy of being as friendly and helpful to the Allies as was possible whilst remaining neutral. This did not arise from any love of Britain, but from De Valera's recognition of Ireland's geographical and economic position. Ireland's safety was bound up in Britain's survival.

Anglo-American Inquiry Planned On Europe Jews

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

LONDON, Nov. — Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin told Commons today that the United States had accepted an invitation to co-operate with Britain in a joint examination of the problems of European Jewry and Palestine.

The British government is taking every step open to it to try to improve the lot of the Jews, Bevin said.

"The Jewish problem is a great, human one", he said. "We cannot accept the view that the Jews should be driven out of Europe and should not be permitted to live again in these countries without discrimination and contribute their ability and talent toward rebuilding the prosperity of Europe.

V

"EVEN AFTER we have done all we can in this respect, it does not provide a solution for the whole problem."

The establishment of the Anglo-American inquiry, he said, was designed to examine the question of European Jewry and to make a further review of the Palestine problem in the light of that examination.

"There have recently been demands made upon me for large scale immigration into Palestine," Bevin said.

"WHILE PALESTINE may be able to make a contribution, it does not itself provide sufficient opportunity for grappling with the whole of the problem. The government are anxious to explore every possibility which will result in giving the Jews a proper opportunity for revival."

Deny Unnecessary Delay Belsen Trial

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

LUENEBURG, Nov. 13.—(BUP)—Col. Thomas Backhouse, prosecutor of the Belsen atrocity cases, today declined that there had been any unnecessary delay in the trial which has now run 50 days.

"I would like to say," he said, "that it has been obvious to anybody in this court that no time has been wasted. The prosecution took 38 days to present its case and the defence has taken 30.

"There are 45 accused on trial for their lives and if anyone grudges each of them two-thirds of a day when on trial for his life it should certainly not be anybody associated with British Justice."

He noted that all proceedings had to be translated.

BACKHOUSE, summing up for the prosecution, replied to a contention of Col. H. A. Smith, defence counsel, that the offences did not constitute war crimes by noting that civilians interned at Belsen were entitled to treatment as prisoners of war under the Geneva conventions.

He also said transfer of other European nationals to Germany was a war crime.

Japan must multiply taxes five times. Page 3.

Convicted Pair Warned by Magistrate

May Use Lash to Curb Crime Here

The fact that British Columbia authorities have ordered punishment by the lash and the paddle (a heavy leather strap) in the conviction of men for such crimes as robbery with violence, may not be overlooked in the sentence that next week will be passed on two Edmonton youths who pleaded guilty to a similar charge in city police court Tuesday morning.

THAT WAS THE warning made by Magistrate A. I. Millar, K.C. when he ordered George Krooks, 19, of 10021 95 street, and Marshall Bohaychuk, 17, no given address, to appear for sentence Nov. 21 following the hearing Tuesday. The two accused, given the choice of trial in the city police court or in supreme court, chose the former.

Krooks and Bohaychuk pleaded guilty to throwing W. A. Goad, night clerk at the New Edmonton hotel, on a bed at 1 a.m. Sunday and robbing him of $20, after Goad had called at the room in an effort to interrupt an alleged noisy party.

POLICE SAID GOAD had been struck several times about the stomach and threatened with a bottle before the two youths took his money and left the hotel.

Magistrate Millar declared that "I am not going to overlook the fact that in British Columbia they have found it desirable to use the lash. I am not going to overlook that side of it."

(LAST NOV. 7 a 17-year-old youth convicted of robbery with violence was sentenced to three months imprisonment and five strokes of the paddle, when he appeared before a Vancouver court.)

Krooks and Bohaychuk were remanded in custody. Walter J. Beaumont, appeared for Krooks.

Notes Chronicle His Agonies

Pinned Beneath Car 14 Days, Victim Dies on Rescue Eve

GOLD BEACH, Ore., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Help came one day too late for 78-year-old Earl Stilson, who lay pinned beneath his overturned automobile for 14 days before he died.

The chronicle of his agony, scrawled on bits of paper, was found with the body by state highway workmen Thursday. The last entry, dated the night before, said: "I ought to be dead," and added that he was "ready today to go into his rest if it is His will."

SEARCH PARTIES had been hunting the aged man for days but had stopped 1½ miles south of the place where his car plunged over a cliff Oct. 25.

"I fell asleep," a note explained. "Not a bit of warning."

Stilson suffered a broken leg and other injuries, and lay soaked with rain but unable to get enough water to drink.

"AM SUFFERING for food and drink. Why can I not be found? Not far off road."

Sunday evening, not knowing he had almost another week to live, he wrote:

"Will write this tonight as may not be able to go through another. Can hear cars go by but seem to be hidden from them. Have used up my battery signalling with lights and horn.

"CANNOT UNDERSTAND why I can't be found when my trip can be so easily verified. I need water most of all. With it (rain) falling most of time, I can get little by any device. I can (not) move a little except with agony."

After scrawling a last word "water," on the back of a highway map, Wednesday he probably lapsed into delirium, physicians said.

Plan Security for Common Man

Attlee Asserts Labor Government Not To Be Beaten by Economics

From CP, AP and British UP Dispatches

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Prime Minister Attlee told members of the United States Senate and House of Representatives today what the British Socialist government stood for, and declared "we have not stood up to our enemies for six years to be beaten by economics."

SPEAKING TO A JOINT session of the two houses comprising an audience that overfilled the house floor and galleries Mr. Attlee said his government was embarked on nationalization of monopolistic industries and other "all-embracing schemes" to give security to the common man.

"You, it may be, will continue in your more individualistic methods," he said, and "it is more important that we should understand each other and other nations whose institutions differ from our own."

V

HE ADDED: "It is essential that if we are to build up a peaceful world we should have the widest toleration recognizing that our aim

No Announcement On Atomic Parley

By C. R. BLACKBURN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(CP)—Prime Minister Attlee, President Truman and Prime Minister Mackenzie King today stood firm on their agreement to tell the public nothing of their talks regarding the future of the atom bomb until the current conference is concluded and a joint statement is issued.

The communique likely will come Thursday or Friday and well-based reports said experts are already drafting the document. It now appears likely that the Attlee-King proposal—to offer the scientific secrets of the three powers represented here to all countries willing to pool their own similarly—had been adopted.

THE PROPOSAL would place control of the atom bomb in the hands of the United Nations organization, provided its members entered into a co-operative agreement.

All three principals were closeted yesterday with their scientific advisers, presumably discussing technical aspects of proposals discussed Sunday.

British Shells Blasting Indonese in Soerabaja

By JOHN S. BOWER

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

BATAVIA, Nov. 13.—(BUP)—British troops fought their way into the centre of Soerabaja behind a rolling aerial and artillery barrage today and official sources predicted that Nationalist resistance in the city would be crushed before the week-end.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS spokesmen said infantrymen of the 5th Indian Division penetrated into the modern business section of Soerabaja, in the heart of the East Java naval base.

The bulk of the Indonesian extremists were believed concentrated in the central area and dispatches from the city said they were being blasted out of their barricades by point-blank artillery fire and aerial bombardment.

Flowing Lava Seen

Signs of Live Volcano In Rockies Are Reported

SHEEP CREEK, B.C., Nov. 13.—(CP)—Existence of an active volcano in the Rocky Mountains is being considered following a report that lava has been seen flowing down a nearby mountain side.

Residents of this village, which is 35 air miles northeast of Kimberley in the Kootenay area, have reported a rumbling sound like thunder, and a red glow appearing to the northeast over the mountains.

Ted Baker, Sheep Creek resident, said lava has been seen flowing down the mountain side and cattle refused to drink from Sheep creek because of the presence of volcanic ash. The stream, for which the settlement is named, rises about 30 miles northeast of the village.

The range of mountains in the area has two well-known commercially developed hot springs, Radium and Fairmont springs, as well as several lesser-known hot springs.

Civic Housing Body Condemns "Red Tape" Delaying Project

Failure of Dominion government departments to instruct responsible officers here that eight structures at the Jasper College site have been released for use as housing accommodation for veterans was severely criticized at a meeting of city council's housing committee Monday afternoon, and Mayor Harry Ainlay was instructed to contact Dominion departments concerned to obtain the necessary authorization for the National Housing Act administration here to take possession of the buildings immediately.

IT WAS STATED that the release of the buildings for housing had been announced in the House of Commons; that the civic authorities had been advised of the release of the buildings, that one Dominion department here had also been advised, but that the department responsible for the taking over of the structures and their administration had not received notification of release.

In addition to getting the release authority Mayor Ainlay also will endeavor to obtain sanction for the spending of about $50,000 to supply proper kitchen facilities in the suites, and also to make provision for 64 suites instead of the 32 suites available as the structures now stand.

THE COMMITTEE also decided to recommend that the strongest possible protest be made to the Dominion government against the use

Say Calgary Mill May Be Purchased For New Brewery

CALGARY, Nov. 13. — (CP) — It was reported in Calgary yesterday afternoon that a B.C. brewing company had entered into negotiations at Vancouver with English directors of the Spillers Mill Company for the purchase of the Spillers mill in East Calgary for conversion into a brewery.

At Edmonton yesterday it was reported that a new $1,000,000 brewery in Calgary was being planned.

It was stated that the huge building in East Calgary could be adapted for brewery purposes with little or no engineering difficulty.

Name de Gaulle Chief of State

PARIS, Nov. 13 — (BUP) — The new French chamber of deputies today elected Gen. Charles de Gaulle chief of the French state.

De Gaulle's election by the new assembly had been a foregone conclusion.

Before his election leaders of all the major French parties rose in the chamber and announced they had agreed to vote for de Gaulle.

DE GAULLE will begin conferences at once with leaders of the major parties in an attempt to establish a government in which Communists, Socialists and the Catholic Republican Popuiare all will take part.

Differences between the Communists and MRP still remained after nearly a week of negotiations. Thus it appeared possible that de Gaulle would be unable to devise a compromise program to which all would agree. In that case he was expected to resign, precipitating the gravest political crisis since the liberation.

RCAF Will Take Over Namao Base

OTTAWA, Nov. 13.—(CP)—Several United States army officers from the Northwest Command were in Ottawa today conferring with Canadian army and air force officers on the transfer of the Alaska Highway to Canadian control.

The transfer will take place next April and the conference which will go on for a few days, relates to details and technical matters incidental to the shift.

V

UNDER THE ARRANGEMENT announced some time ago the Canadian army will become responsible for maintenance and operation of the highway while the air force will take over the chain of landing fields and the communications system connecting them which paralleled the highway.

The big airport at Namao, north of Edmonton, used for ferrying military aircraft to Russia during the war, is one of those which will be taken over by the RCAF.

THIS AIRPORT still is operated by the U.S. Army and so far as is known the RCAF plans to continue its operations after the changeover. When airports are no longer required for defence purposes they are turned over to the transport department for civil operations, if so required.

Transport department officials have as yet received no intimation that they will be called on to take over Namao.

New Offer Made

Negotiations In 'Peg Strike End in Failure

WINNIPEG, Nov. 13.—(CP)—Negotiations in the contract dispute between the publishers of the Free Press and Tribune, Winnipeg's two dailies and their composing room employees, were broken off today, it was announced by spokesmen of both parties.

Speaking for the compositors, members of Local 191, International Typographical Union (AFL) representative Harry Finch, declared negotiations had collapsed "by the publishers insisting upon imposing conditions under which our members cannot work". As a result, he said, the International executive council of the union had recognized a state of lockout existed.

"Machinery has been set up to institute our own publication and also to picket the shops involved", Mr. Finch said.

Russia's Red Army Leaving Manchuria

By GEORGE WANG

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

CHUNGKING, Nov. 13.—(BUP)—Russia's Red Banner Army was reported today to have begun a mass withdrawal from Manchuria, on the southern approaches of which more than 2,000,000 Chinese Communist and Nationalist troops were locked in undeclared civil war.

* * *

INFORMED SOURCES said main units of the Soviet forces in Manchuria were pulling out in three directions, leaving the occupation issue up to the warring Chinese factions.

The Russians were reported moving in force from Manchuria into the Soviet occupation zone of Northern Korea, to the great Russian base of Vladivostok flanking Manchuria on the east, and to Port Arthur, at the tip of the province

Thirteenth Award Of Highest Honor Made Posthumously

61,276 Recipients

Old-Age Pension Is Boosted to $50 In Washington

OLYMPIA, Wash., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Full $50 minimum pensions minus income from other sources will from now on be paid to all recipients of old-age assistance in the state, Gov. Mon C. Wallgren announced.

The announcement followed a conference with Mrs. Kathryn Malstrom, Social Security director, who recommended the increase to a full minimum of $50 after receiving assurance from the federal Social Security Board that the full provision of the new state law would not jeopardize federal matching funds.

* * *

MRS. MALSTROM estimated 30,000 recipients will receive "boosts," effective in January and retroactive to last May or whenever the recipient became eligible, if later than May.

One of the principal questions has been over the payment of a full $50 to both man and wife in the case of married couples. This has been approved.

UPPING THE PENSION payments, which in August averaged $43.34, to 61,276 senior citizens will cost an extra $5,000,000 during the biennium, the governor said. "The state of Washington pays old-age pensions to both men and women starting at the age of 65."

"I am certainly pleased that we finally have been able to clear the way for payment of the full $50 to our needy senior citizens," Wallgren said. "I have been greatly disturbed over the delay in settling the questions that were raised with regard to federal matching funds.

"It was my intention, and that of the legislators with whom I worked in drafting this bill to provide a $50 minimum.

"I HAVE SUBSEQUENTLY held several conferences in an effort to work out a solution to this problem and I am very happy with the results."

The governor said he has insisted upon paying maximum benefits since passage of the legislation but that question of legal interpretation blocked earlier action.

THE FEDERAL BOARD assured Mrs. Malstrom that federal matching would be available to the extent of the $20 federal maximum for payments of at least $50 minus income and other resources to each needy individual eligible under the law and that if the Washington law were to be construed to permit or require such payments to persons living together, as well as those living separately, no question of conformity with the Social Security Act would be raised.

Weather Grounds Air Transports East of Alberta

TORONTO, Nov. 13. — (CP) — Weather conditions grounded aircraft from Halifax to Lethbridge last night and there was little indication the low ceiling would lift before noon Tuesday. Officials of both Trans-Canada Air Lines and American Airlines held little hope of resumption of schedules before Tuesday afternoon.

The unusual condition was caused by warm moist air blanketing the country with a low-lying layer of cloud, reducing the ceiling to between 100 and 200 feet.

Renew Proposal

Company Urges Settling Strike By Arbitration

By JACK WILLIAMS

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 13.—(CP)—Ford Motor Company of Canada, Ltd., officials today renewed a proposal that a 63-day-old strike over a new bargaining agreement be settled by arbitration.

The original offer, made last Friday by the company and rejected by union officers, expired last midnight. Union officials said previously they were prepared to arbitrate on all points except the two main issues—union demands for a union shop and a check-off system.

THE COMPANY renewed the offer in telegrams addressed to Labor Minister Mitchell, Local 200 of the United Automobile Workers (CIO), which called the walkout affecting 10,000 Ford production workers, and to Attorney-General Leslie Blackwell of Ontario. The offer apparently extends indefinitely since no deadline was mentioned.

Earlier today, it was learned that representatives of the UAW and of the Jesuit College as a hospital for tubercular Indians while a request has been made to the Dominion to provide an additional 100 beds in the college for veterans suffering from tuberculosis and other war injuries.

Also recommended by the committee was a demand to the Dominion government to expedite the release of materials available at different abandoned military and air force camps throughout Alberta so that housing projects now under construction, and more than 600 homes nearing completion in Edmonton, can be made ready for occupancy.

THE MEETING was attended by L. D. Byrne, deputy minister of economic affairs, and G. A. Clash, department of trade and industry, representing the provincial government; Capt. Harper Prowse, M.L.A., soldier representative; W. J. Williams, M.L.A., secretary, Canadian Legion; W. L. Watson, Dominion emergency shelter officer; Arthur Arnold, representative from the National Housing Administration, and representatives of the Students' Union, University of Alberta.

Mr. Watson told committee members that he had received notification last Thursday of the release of the eight huts at the Jesuit college, but Mr. Arnold, under whose jurisdiction the huts will be received and rented, stated that up to his appearing at the meeting he had not been instructed concerning the release.

IT WAS STATED in the communication to Mr. Watson that no expenditures had been authorized in connection with the structures. Mr. Arnold said that if no structural alterations were made only 32 families could be housed, but if $30,000 was spent on alterations a total of 64 units could be provided.

Mayor Ainlay asked how many huts were on the Jesuit college site, and was told there were 18, but the balance of the huts would be in use for hospitalization of patients.

IT WAS REPORTED also that the Dawson Creek hospital, advocated as an alternative to the Jesuit college as an Indian hospital, had been stripped of kitchen and heating facilities. It was stated that it would be impossible to get the necessary nursing and medical staff to take up residence there.

Chief Commissioner H. A. Gibbard read a letter received from the minister of Indian affairs in which it was stated that the decision to utilize the Jesuit college as an Indian hospital had been made after the army authorities, and the department of Veterans' Affairs had declared the building surplus.

IT WAS POINTED OUT that a great many Indians were receiving treatment in Edmonton hospitals, and that there were many more in district hospitals.

The hospital, the communication stated, would be self-contained, the grounds kept in good order, and there was no reason to believe it would depreciate the property values of the neighborhood.

A staff of 150 would be employed at the institution, which together with other expenditures would be a material addition to Edmonton's economy.

DISCUSSING THE PROBABILITY of obtaining a change of plan by the Dominion authorities, it was stated that the supervising medical officer had been appointed, and that other staff members also had been engaged. It was unlikely there would be any change made.

Members of the committee and representative of organizations could not understand why the department of veterans' affairs here would be asking that 100 beds be made available in the Jesuit college hospital here if it was surplus to the department's requirements.

IT WOULD APPEAR that a serious mistake has been made and that the veterans will have to suffer through that mistake, committee members commented.

Asked concerning the progress on conversion of huts at the exhibition grounds, Mr. Arnold stated that the 40 suites being converted would be completed within two weeks. The commissioners were requested, in accordance if such other buildings were available at the exhibition grounds for conversion into temporary accommodation.

IT WAS REPORTED that progress on the provincial-municipal housing project was being retarded because certain material stated to be available at Whitehorse, and other northern centres, had not been released by the Dominion as expected. It was explained by Mr. Arnold that the material had not been declared surplus by Dominion departments concerned, and therefore could not be disposed of by War Assets Corporation. Efforts will be made to expedite release of this material.

Failure to complete the suites under the provincial-municipal housing plan was working a hardship on veteran students at the University and it was stated by Capt. Prowse that, unless accommodation was provided, 30 per cent of veteran students registered, would not be able to continue their studies. He said many veterans were spending their gratuity on hotel accommodation, the cost of which greatly exceeded the allowance made them by the Dominion government.

A SPOKESMAN for the Students' Union stated there were 500 applications on hand for the 100 suites to be made available to the university under the Dawson Creek project, and added that enrollment in January would increase the university's requirements as far as veterans were concerned to approximately 500 housing accommodation units.

Materials needed for the completion of suites in the Dawson Creek project include sinks, toilets and wallboard. Capt. Prowse stated that this material was now in such short supply when ample supplies were available throughout the war period. He said the manufacture of these materials had not been discontinued, and the only apparent answer was that there must be a serious breakdown in the housing administration departments of the Dominion government.

Blast Indonese

agency said large areas of Soerabaja were aflame from the British shelling and that an 8,000-ton Japanese ship in the harbor caught fire yesterday.

Casualties among the nationalists apparently were running high. British officers said groups of as many as 1,000 Indonesians were being "broken up" by the steady ground and air hammering.

More than half the city was in British hands, and late advices said they held a line this morning extending roughly from the Hotel Soerabaja and the telegraph office to the Grand Hotel.

RAF PLANES CIRCLED overhead throughout the day, strafing nests of resistance and dive-bombing Nationalist road blocks in the path of the Indian infantry.

Meanwhile, sporadic sniping continued to harass the British in Batavia and a number of British and Indian officers were wounded.

Tension also was rising in the interior, where Allied authorities took additional precautions to safeguard civilian internees in Bandoeng and Buitenzorg by breaking up captured Japanese guns and light tanks.

Dr. Sukarno, president of the Indonesian republic "government," called a meeting of his cabinet in Batavia to report on the situation in Central Java.

THE SESSION reportedly was a heated affair and at least two members stalked out in the midst of the conference, which continued through a late hour this afternoon.

Indonesian forces were reported active on both sides of the Kulimas river, which runs through Soerabaja from north to south.

British troops dispersed the Indonesians and moved forward along the east side of the river. The British conducted a house-to-house search for arms.

RAF RECONNAISSANCE planes spotted refugees on foot leaving the town on highways running to the south. British headquarters had reports indicating some Japanese troops were aiding the Indonesian forces.

The Indonesians claimed their artillery replied to some British attacks, forcing the British to retire.

A NUMBER OF FIRES broke out and the Indonesians blasted what might adopt a scorched earth policy.

Dr. Sukarno after a series of heated conferences, reorganized his government to turn over the bulk of the positions to Sutan Sjahrir, chairman of the 15 member working committee of the Repun movement. Sjahrir now is the leader of premier, foreign minister and home affairs. Adir Sjarifudin became minister of internal security and information.

Child Is Awarded Damages of $1,000

Damages amounting to $1,000 were awarded by Mr. Justice G. B. O'Connor to Madeline M. Davis, a Lindberg district child, against Alberta Quayle, district resident, in a supreme court action involving an indecent assault.

A sum of $100 was awarded the father of the child, Edward Davis, who sued on her behalf. The court held that the "child's story of the assault carries conviction in essentials, and it is hardly possible that she could have invented the details of it.

Young Apple Tree Still Bears Fruit Despite the Cold

Two big apples are still hanging from the branch of an apple tree owned by Alex Zima, 8811 109 avenue. This is unique due to the fact that the tree is only in its third year of growth and stands but five feet in height. At its thickest part the tree is less than 1½ inches in diameter.

The tree had but two blooms this summer and both of them have turned into apples. Mr. Zima has bigger trees in the yard but none have produced any fruit yet. He does not know what type of apple the tree is growing, but says it must be a very hardy type.

Between 30 and 40 summonses have been served in the campaign launched recently by the city police traffic squad against motorists who park their automobiles and trucks for long periods of time on city thoroughfares, Stg. Albert E. Woodwards, traffic squad chief, revealed Tuesday.

In some cases, fines ranging from $2 and costs to $5 and costs have been imposed by the police.

The drive was launched in an effort to reduce the number of motor vehicles parked on city streets for a day or more.

Officials Here Planning Survey Of 30 Buildings

Survey of 30 buildings formerly occupied by United States forces here will be made by Mayor Harry Ainlay, Maxwell C. Dewar, city architect, and Arthur Arnold, representative here of National Housing Administration, to determine if they could be converted into suitable housing accommodation to relieve the desperate shortage now existing.

MAKING THE announcement of the pending survey, Mayor Ainlay said that he had been informed by United States officials that the buildings could be made available within 24 hours if the necessary release orders could be obtained from higher authorities.

Mayor Ainlay said he understood that the structures to be inspected had been used as offices and other personnel quarters and were pretty well equipped with essential services.

IN THE MEANTIME Mayor Ainlay is communicating with Acting Prime Minister Ja L. Ilsley seeking a speeding up of the release of the plant now at the Jesuit college site, and also authorization to make slight structural changes so that the buildings will house 64 instead of 32 family units.

A protest is also being forwarded to Mr. Ilsley against the use of the Jesuit College property as a hospital for Indians.

THE SCOPE OF the reported Soviet withdrawal from Manchuria still was obscure. But informed references to a pullout of the main Soviet units in a concerted, three-way action, suggested that the Red Army command had decided on a full scale exit without waiting for the Chinese to resolve their own differences.

The gravity of the civil war and an indication of this hope for early settlement were reflected in an appeal to Chungking by General-issimo Chiang Kai-Shek's forces in Inner Mongolia for reinforcements.

Attlee Speech in Washington

is not uniformity but unity in diversity. It would be a dull world if we were all alike."

Mr. Attlee elaborated his faith in the United Nations organization and his determination to make it successful in its operations.

World prosperity and good neighborliness, he said, must be the foundations of peace, and he assured his listeners there was "no reason" for economic rivalry between Great Britain and the United States.

HE DECLARED that "man's material discoveries have outpaced his moral progress."

"The greatest task that faces us today", he said, "is to bring home to all people before it is too late that our civilization can only survive by the acceptance and practice in international relations and in our national life of the Christian principle (that) we are members one of another".

IN THIS COUNTRY to discuss with President Truman and Canadian Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King means of making the world safe for atomic energy, Attlee asserted:

"It is a great mistake to think constantly of war and the prevention of war.

"We have to think rather of the best means of building up peace. Speaking for Great Britain, I can say that the foundation of peace lay in the hearts of men, and I hold it true that the more the citizens of the world get to know each other the less likely are we to have the emotional condition in which war is possible".

FOR THAT REASON, Attlee continued, "our United Nations, in which I profoundly believe, must be something more than an agreement between governments. It must be an expression of the will of the common people in every country."

The prime minister's speech was couched mainly in general terms. He did not specifically mention Soviet Russia or detail any plans for bringing about greater unity between the eastern and western allies.

He did, however, pay tribute to Generalissimo Joseph Stalin in a reference to the late President Roosevelt and former Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

"IN THE STRUGGLE against the forces of tyranny," Attlee said, "the names of these two men, Churchill and Roosevelt, together with that of Generalissimo Stalin, will ever be a glorious achievement."

He also seemed to underscore President Truman's Navy Day assertion that this country, intended only for peace, would rely upon possession of the atomic bomb as a sacred trust. In words which might have been related to allay Soviet fears, Attlee said:

"Today the United States stands out as the mightiest power on earth. And yet America is a threat to no one."

ATTLEE, WHOSE SPEECH was broadcast over all networks, said the Labor government of Great Britain believes that the foundations of peace must be world prosperity and good neighborliness." And it is determined, he said, to fight for this objective "with courage and a determination to win through."

"We have not stood up to our enemies for six years," he said, "to be beaten by economics."

HE SOUGHT TO reassure his audience about the so-called Socialist government of Britain. Some persons, he said, believe the Socialists are "out to destroy freedom, freedom of the individual, freedom of speech, freedom of religion and freedom of the press."

"They are wrong" he said.

Attlee pointed out that the Labor party consists not only of wage earners but also of professional and white collar workers, clergymen, Journalists, Protestants, Catholics and Jews.

"THE OLD SCHOOL TIE can still be seen on the government benches," he said.

But though the party is not out to destroy any of the democratic freedoms, it intends to retain and guard the freedoms of the individual.

Mr. Attlee likened his country to a man in Britain returning from the war to find "his home blitzed and his business ruined."

"We went all out to win the war and now have to start afresh," he said. "Like him, we are facing the future with courage and a determination to win through."

THE UNITED STATES had lost great numbers of the flower of its young men. "So have we in Britain. So have all countries that have been engaged in this great struggle. But you have been spared destruction of your great cities. You have not had in America the spectacle of hundreds of thousands of broken homes. You have not had the great masses of people driven from their habitation, wandering about, seeking where to lay their heads. You have not had the work of centuries of human endeavor destroyed by the bombs and attacks from the air. But I know you are fully conscious of the tragic folly of war."

Explaining that he never lacked candid critics inside his own ranks, Mr. Attlee declared: "We believe in the freedom of the individual to live his own life, but that freedom is conditioned by his not cramping and restricting the freedom of his fellowman. There is and always will be scope for enterprise but when big business gets too powerful so that it becomes monopolistic, we hold it is not safe to leave it in private hands. Further, in the world today we believe, as do most people in Britain, that one must plan the economic activities of our country if we are to assure the common man a fair deal."

MR. ATTLEE CITED his own career to illustrate to congress that the Labor Party was not exclusively the working class but was drawn from all sections of society.

"Forty years ago as a young man studying law, just down from Oxford, I visited for the first time my constituency, Limehouse—a very poor district in East London. I was seeking to see at first hand the facts of poverty in our great cities. I became convinced that we must build our society on a surer foundation. The result was I joined the Socialist movement and eventually after many years of striving, I find myself Prime Minister of Britain."

"WE BELIEVE we can't make heaven in our own country and leave hell outside. We believe this, not only from a moral basis of our movement which is based on brotherhood of man without distinction, race or creed, but also from the entirely practical standpoint. We seek to raise the standard of life of our people. We can only do so by trading with the rest of the world and as good traders we wish to have prosperous customers.

"There is ample room in the world for the expansion of great industrial nations like our own to raise the general levels throughout the world. We, like you, believe in expanding economies and we can see no reason why the need being so great, there should be any rivalry between us."

"WE BELIEVE that where science has placed such potential abundance before the human race we should collaborate to take advantage of it. Britain and America can and fight for larger and individual shares . . ."

Mr. Attlee declared: "In the British Commonwealth and Empire we offer an example of many nations; some of which have reached, others of which are approaching, full self-government. Even during the war India was given an opportunity of taking complete charge of her own affairs and in the colonial empire we have eight or nine constitutions which have been adopted or are being worked out, all based on the extension of democratic principles."

Attlee said he looked to an era of increasing co-operation between this country and the United States —"Not as being an exclusive friendship but as a contribution to the building together of the peoples through the United Nations organization in the bonds of peace."

INTERNAL POLICIES need not jeopardize this co-operation, he said.

"We shall be working out a planned economy," he continued. "You, it may be, will continue in your more individual system of enterprise.

"It is essential if we are to build up a peaceful world that we should see the widest toleration recognizing that our aim is not uniformity but unity in diversity.

"It would be a dull world if we were all alike."

HE EXPRESSED full trust in the good purposes of the United States.

"Today," he said, 'the United States stands out as the mightiest power on earth.

"And yet America is a threat to no one. All know that she will never use her power for selfish ends, for territorial aggrandizement in the future any more than she has done in the past.

"WE LOOK UPON her forces and our own forces and those of other countries as instruments that must never be employed save in the interests of world security and for the repression of the aggressor."

Attlee said this country had been spared the ravages of war.

"But", he added, "I know that you are fully conscious of the tragic folly of war."

THERE ARE NOW no natural defensive barriers behind which nations may hide in security, he said. "The old discontinuity of earth and sea has been replaced by the continuity of the air," Attlee said, adding:

"The old and historic divisions do not exist in the element in which men now move. If not now in a few years the devastating weapons which are at present being developed may menace every part of the world.

"IT IS IN THE LIGHT of these facts and in particular in the light —the terrible light—of the atomic bomb, that I have entered into discussion with your President in order that we may get together with all the nations of the world and consider what kind of world it is necessary to have if civilization is to survive and if the common man in all lands is to feel secure."

Attlee chose the occasion to exhale to the American people the philosophy of his Socialist party concerning government ownership of such things as railroads and mines, and steel industries, and the Bank of England.

"In the world today," he said, "we believe as do most people in Britain, that we must plan the economic activities of the country if we are to assure the common man a fair deal."

MEANTIME, CANADIAN, British and American advisory experts were meeting separately to put on paper suggested versions of the atomic bomb control policy which will be issued in a three-power communique Thursday or Friday.

Attlee hoped that the policy finally agreed upon would improve Soviet relations with the three nations which now hold the atomic bomb secret. President Truman obviously had the same hope, but the White House shed no light whatever on American participation in the Anglo-American-Canadian discussions.

The meetings were suspended yesterday because, according to one source, progress was so speedy that the advisory staffs—experts in drafting international statements—needed time to start their individual drafts of the final communique.

'Peg Strike

failure to reach an agreement in negotiations which have been in progress five days, another offer had been made to the men through Mr. Justice W. J. Major, special commissioner, appointed by the federal minister of labor.

"As we have apparently failed to reach an agreement with respect to the terms of the new contract," the statement said, "we suggest, as the only practical procedure, that the publishers and the union refer the drafting of the terms of a new contract to board of arbitration."

THE PUBLISHERS proposed such a board should be comprised of one representative of the union, one from the publishers and a third member appointed by the chief justice of Manitoba to serve as chairman. It was further suggested that any contract agreed upon should be binding on both parties.

Although the offer was rejected by the union representatives, Mr. Justice Major said he would hold the meeting open for a further 48 hours. If neither party consults him by then, he said he would have no recourse but to report the matter to the federal labor minister at Ottawa.

IN THE PUBLISHERS' statement it was explained the chief point of contention in the dispute has been the printers' insistance that the new contract include, without alteration, their union's regulations as determined and interpreted by International headquarters at Indianapolis and were not subject to settlement by arbitration under Manitoba or Dominion laws.

"The publishers felt they could not sign such a contract," the statement declared. "The publishers stated that the printers left of their own accord without notice. The doors have been continuously open. No member of the union has been refused work. No doors have been locked nor have the printers been intimidated in any way. When the printers left their jobs, their weekly pay was $46.92 for 46 hours, a rate approved by the War Labor Board.

Ford Strike

Canadian Congress of Labor unions expected to fly to Ottawa either late today or tomorrow for a meeting with Labor Minister Mitchell.

Tentative plans were made for George Addes, UAW international secretary-treasurer; Pat Conroy, CCL secretary-treasurer, and Georg Burt, UAW Canadian director, to leave Windsor at 3 p.m. today.

There were definite indications that the union leaders had not abandoned hope of breaking the deadlock between union and company. The main point in dispute over a new bargaining agreement is the union demand for a union shop and a check-off system.

THERE WAS NO FORMAL union confirmation of the meeting with Mr. Mitchell, who returned to Ottawa last Saturday after a five-day effort here to end the strike, but a union spokesman said there was "a possibility" such a meeting would be held. It was understood suggestion for a conference came from the union.

At midnight last night a company proposal advanced last week for settlement by arbitration expired. The union's policy committee previously rejected the plan and it had been criticized by union officers who said they were prepared to have arbitration on all points except the two main issues in the work stoppage that has lasted two months—the union's demand for a union shop and the check-off.

EARLIER YESTERDAY the union had sent two representatives to place before company officials a plan under which the power plant would be reopened and negotiations started immediately for settlement of all points in dispute. The plan was rejected by the company. Today new meetings of the Ford strike committee of the Canadian Congress of Labor and the negotiating committee of the Ford UAWA local were scheduled, but there was no indication what direction the discussions would take.

FUNNY BUSINESS—"Shrewd bill collector—he finds out if they're really home before he pushes the button!"

Approve New Body

Commons Now Ready to Pass Housing Administration Act

OTTAWA, Nov. 13.—(CP)—The Commons last night completed clause-by-clause study of a bill to establish a $25,000,000 Central Loan and Mortgage Corporation to administer housing legislation, but adoption of the measure was postponed until Tuesday.

A NUMBER of amendments which made no substantial changes to the bill were accepted and several were rejected after Finance Minister Ilsley explained the government's objections to them.

He accepted an amendment of Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) which would authorize the corporation to recommend grants for slum clearance.

Another of Mr. Knowles' amendments was defeated 74 to 26 after Mr. Ilsley said that it would allow the corporation to recommend to the minister matters which really came under government policy and not under the authority of the minister. The amendment dealt with the making of housing agreements with provinces, municipalities and other housing authorities.

ALSO REJECTED was an amendment of Rodney Adamson (PC—York West) which would have prevented the corporation from making loans in any case where the house to be built did not meet with municipal or provincial town planning legislation. Mr. Ilsley said builders had to comply with municipal and provincial laws and there was no need of stipulating that in the bill.

On completion of the clause by clause study of the bill, the house turned its attention to a measure amending the War Charities Act in order to bring war memorials within its provisions.

THE BILL WAS GIVEN third and final reading after Dr. J. J. McCann, war services minister, said the purpose in bringing war memorials under the act was to give communities seeking funds for such memorials "much more chance of gaining public support."

John R. MacNicol (PC-Toronto Davenport) suggested standardization of some parts of memorials. Services but Dr. McCann said he was opposed to this because each service reflected the spirit of the community in which it was held.

BEFORE CONSIDERING the House bill, which received second reading Friday night, the House heard:

1. An announcement by Finance Minister Ilsley, acting prime minister, that all new tariff rates announced in the budget will be dropped immediately and the old rates restored because the changes had been interpreted as representing a change in the government's general approach to commercial policy.

2. Review by Labor Minister Mitchell of the Ford strike situation at Windsor, Ont., in which he said there was some indication that the employer's proposal for re-opening the Ford plant would be reconsidered by the union before the deadline at midnight.

3. AN APPEAL by Mr. Ilsley to members to speed up business and restrain their inclinations to speak repeatedly on the same subject and warning that the House could not possibly complete its work before Christmas at the present rate.

4. An announcement by Mr. Ilsley that Prime Minister Attlee has consented to come to Ottawa from the atomic energy talks in Washington and will address the Houses of Parliament, possibly next Monday.

THE EXTERNAL AFFAIRS committee tabled a report recommending ratification of an International Labor Organization convention covering safeguards for longshoremen and suggesting the number of inspectors of ships' tackle in Canadian ports be increased and that they be given larger salaries.

During consideration of the housing bill, Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) sought to have the bill amended so provinces, municipalities and other public bodies would be listed among lending institutions which could make loans for home building purposes.

THE AMENDMENT was defeated without a recorded vote after Finance Minister Ilsley said it would do no harm and would do no good. The proper place for the amendment was to the National Housing Act.

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, and Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton) said the amendment was constitutionally wrong.

Mr. Fleming said it would simply allow municipalities to loan on mortgages the same as any other lending institution.

REFERRING to a clause establishing the corporation's head office at Ottawa, Mr. Fleming said there had been "over-centralization" in the administration of the National Housing Act and suggested the proposed corporation set up branches.

Mr. Ilsley said that was the intention.

G. H. Castleden (CCF-Yorkton) said the board of directors should include a member well-informed on building.

Mr. Fleming said there should be in the corporation people who were "definitely interested" in seeing that houses were built.

MR. ILSLEY said the suggestions would be kept in mind.

John Blackmore (SC, Lethbridge) said some definite assurance was needed that people who needed money to build homes would get the money at low interest rates. The purpose of the corporation seemed to be to get hold of the deeds of houses being built.

Angus MacInnis (CCF, Vancouver East) said that long before the war private enterprise had proved it

EXPLOSIVE-INFECTED BUILDINGS DESTROYED TO SAVE LIVES AND PROTECT PROPERTY—One of the hundreds of buildings which make up the Bouchard Works of Defence Industries Limited (left) was burned by squads working under the direction of the Decontamination Committee of the Department of Munitions and Supply. This safety measure was to ensure that buildings heavily charged with explosives shall not be used in a way that endangers life. Every effort is made to salvage materials and plant equipment for sale by War Assets Corporation. Decontamination work in explosives and shell-filling plants will take several months. Only a small percentage of buildings will be destroyed, and then only after all salvageable materials have been removed. Where material can be salvaged, decontamination is achieved by the application of heat to a temperature above the explosive point of the possible source of hazard, or by cleaning with neutralizing chemicals. Pieces of wood from structures at Defence Industries Limited (right) show one of the tests to detect the presence of explosives. Chemical compounds are poured or sprayed on the material; if the wood does not change color, the explosives are not present, but if it turns pink or red, explosives are imbedded in the fibres of the wood and are combustible.

McGeer States Gold Reserve Is Inadequate

OTTAWA, Nov. 13.—(CP)—Senator G. G. McGeer (L-British Columbia) told the Senate last night Canada's gold reserve was "wholly inadequate" to meet the emergencies that lay ahead.

He was speaking on a motion by Senator A. D. McRae (PC-British Columbia) urging a program to develop the gold industry in Canada.

HE MOVED THAT Senator McIlraith's motion be referred to the standing committee on banking and commerce in urging that the Senate give the industry "a full hearing" and its problems a "proper investigation."

The part gold would play in the stabilization of Canadian buying power was an important one. In monetary service it had suffered in popularity and use, but it was still a thing of value and power, the only safe and sane form of universal wealth.

In 150 years there had been 43 alternating booms and depressions while gold was the basis of world trade because of the manipulations that governed its use.

"IN DEALING WITH war criminals we should not forget the part German finance had played in Nazism," said Senator McGeer.

Not gold but its abuse by man had been a traitor to man. Man must banish those abuses.

International trade would more and more be governed by management. There would be no return to "the good old days" when gold ruled.

GOLD SHOULD be completely cut off from the realm of domestic currency and kept exclusively for international currency. This Canada now was doing.

Canada's gold reserves had been nearly exhausted during the war. Her production had been halved.

The government had provided no relief for that exhaustion. The industry was confronted with an amazing confusion of laws, orders and regulations. The time had come for a clarification and simplification of those hindrances.

CANADA SHOULD guarantee her stability with her own money, said Senator McGeer. She should join with other countries of the British Empire in accumulating a gold reserve that would make them independent of the United States. There was more wealth beneath the British flag than in either the United States or Russia.

Her gold cost Canada nothing. To the miner she gave bills that cost her nothing and which could not, in turn, become gold, for those bills were no longer secured by a gold reserve or convertible into gold as they once were.

Canadians were told they must pay their foreign debts with gold. There were other methods—by increased production, by effective management of foreign trade.

Cut Budget in Half

Japan Must Multiply Taxes Five Times to Curb Inflation

By RUSSELL BRINES

TOKYO, Nov. 13.—(AP)—War-crushed Japan must cut her peacetime budget in half and multiply her taxes by five in order to control inflation, the semi-official post-war currency council reported today to the finance ministry.

* * *

THE NEWSPAPER Yomiuri Hochi, reporting the sharp warning said the council had been charged with preparation of a five-year program to stabilize currency—already ballooned by a mush-rooming black market. The council recommended a 1946-47 budget of not more than 15,000,000,000 yen, compared with a current budget of 111,434,000,000 yen the newspaper said. Current tax revenues of 14,000,000,000 yen should be boosted to 70,000,000,000, the council was quoted as urging.

Non-military items of the present 111,434,000,000-yen budget are twice the proposed 1946-47 total budget figure.

By March, headquarters said, the entire spring occupation forces for Korea and Japan would be reduced to about 200,000 men.

Japanese unrest seemed to centre on the semi-feudalistic land system, which was reported under scrutiny both by Allied headquarters and the Japanese government.

AS WINTER POINTS UP the critical Japanese food and housing shortages, Kyoda news agency reported increasing support for the idea of expropriation of Japanese farm lands in favor of tenant owners.

Allied headquarters indicated new democratization directives would be aimed at the land system through which tenants have been held in virtual bondage for generations.

Scottish Woman Sent Love Notes To Nazi Fuehrer

BERLIN, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler received admiring letters from five continents, including some from a Scotswoman who called him "My Best Beloved."

Those epistles, found in the files of Reichschancellery, shook both German and British police in 1936.

Her scrawled exclamations on blue-tinted stationery first disclosed that she had had a vision of an assassination attempt by three foreigners against Hitler's life, and added:

"Please take care of My Hero for I must have thy personal safety. How can I comfort thee? I come into thy arms a little while."

She signed herself "Your Little Frau, Jean."

Smuggling Ring Is Discovered On East Train

MONTREAL, Nov. 13.—(CP)—Weeks of investigation on trains between Montreal and New York have uncovered a well-organized smuggling ring and led to the imminent arrest of seven railway employees.

A Royal Canadian Mounted Police officer said last night that seven men would be arraigned "within a day or two" as a result of investigations by the RCMP and Canadian Pacific Railway Police. The officer said he understood that an eighth man, an American Negro sleeping car porter had already been arrested in the United States.

NAMES OF THE EIGHT men will not be released until they have been formally charged.

He added that reports that the other seven men were already being detained were premature.

The gang, which police say operated a two-way smuggling racket between Montreal and New York, is said to have taken Canadian goods into the United States for distribution on the black market there and returned to Canada with American goods for illegal sale here.

ONE OF THE MEN who will be arrested shortly, police said, is employed in a Montreal railway yard and was responsible for disposing of the smuggled goods when they arrived here.

Cigarets, silk stockings and lingerie were favorite articles brought into Montreal while food products received top priority on the New York trips. Chosen spots in railway cars were used to hide the goods from Canadian and United States customs inspectors.

The CPR and RCMP placed spotters on the trains several weeks ago and their investigations uncovered the ring.

Is Your Car Prepared for Winter?

PEERLESS MOTOR OIL "It's Alloyed"

SERVICE B-A PRODUCTS

AMERICAN OIL COMPANY LIMITED

● Your car's engine and lubricating oil may be freezing cold when you start—yet up to temperatures of 200° or over when you've driven a few miles! Hence the importance of V.I., (Viscosity Index) which is a measurement of resistance to change in Viscosity due to change in temperature. Peerless, an exceptionally high V.I. Oil, gives easy starting when your engine is cold plus safe protection when it's hot.

Pour point is important, too! Oils less efficiently dewaxed than B-A Peerless actually solidify at low temperature, making it hard to get the engine started and leaving metal surfaces unprotected until the motor has had time to warm up.

And with Peerless you add less between changes! That is the experience of motorists in all kinds of driving . . . "It goes further to save you money!" Make sure of easier starting, better cold weather protection, by changing to Peerless Motor Oil. It stays on the job longer and it does a better job because "It's Alloyed!"

In this series, our artist gives his version of how the finest crude oil—symbolized by Pete—is refined at B-A's modern plant, and how Peerless Motor Oil protects your car better.

Don't let your car get caught unprepared! Thick waxy oil will retard starting — won't flow quickly enough to stop expensive engine wear.

Winter-grade Peerless is scientifically treated to remove all harmful wax, and has an exceptionally high V.I. It flows readily at low temperatures.

. . . yet maintains its body when high temperatures are reached. Don't put off changing to winter-grade Peerless — it protects better, lasts longer!

Found Money

Edmonton's new city council had the very great satisfaction at its first meeting of accepting an offer which winds up the operation of refinancing the entire bonded debt of the city. It would be hard to imagine a more auspicious beginning of the year's business.

The over-all effect of this refunding is the saving of about $500,000 in the yearly interest charges. That is a very striking reminder that it does make an all important difference to a community, as to an individual, what rate of interest is paid on borrowed money. That is something the taxpayers should never forget, nor allow themselves to be talked into disregarding. The former interest rates were ruinous and the taxpayers systematically robbed.

A lot of paving can be laid, or other improvement work done, for $500,000. This can be done, not in one year only, but each year, with the money saved by refunding the bond debt—that is, without having to raise taxes.

A Winter Cut Not Likely

Somebody having said that butter may be—may be—unrationed in the United States before the end of this year, the products administrator of the Prices Board warned Canadians against expecting anything of the kind to happen in Canada. Next spring, he says, is the earliest that we should "even begin thinking" about buying butter without coupons.

It is not likely this will come as a blow to rising hopes in many minds. Few people in Canada can have expected a lifting in winter of restrictions which were necessary in summer. And there doesn't seem to be complaint that the present allowances are insufficient, welcome as larger supplies would be.

Rather it is the positive side of this announcement that should arouse attention. There is a prospect, it is said, that we can get through the winter without having the present seven-ounce ration cut down. Last winter it was cut to six ounces.

The consumer is thus sixteen per cent better off than he was last winter, and can hope that the improved scale will hold until spring comes again and production goes up.

V

Why Are They Refugees?

The chairman of President Truman's advisory committee on political refugees said at Montreal that Canada and the United States should open their doors to many of these homeless people in Europe. The Christian nations, he added, have a particular responsibility toward the Jewish refugees in central Europe "because in 1938 and 1939 these nations had not heeded the warnings and taken a stand against the Nazis then".

Just to keep the record straight; some of these nations did take a stand against Hitlerism in 1939. France was knocked out for doing so, and Britain came so near to being knocked out that the fate of the world hung in the balance until Russia and the United States were drawn into the fight by overt acts of aggression against themselves. This has nothing to do with the immigration question, but it is not a fact to be tossed aside for purposes of rhetoric.

Undoubtedly Canada should adopt a liberal but selective immigration policy toward the refugees in Europe. That for humane reasons, but also because there is room and opportunity here which they are well qualified to make good use of, to their own advantage and that of the country.

But there is one point not to be overlooked. These people are refugees because the Nazis made them so. They were robbed, tortured and driven from their homes as a matter of political policy, not by the unavoidable exigencies of war. Those who robbed them should be compelled to make restitution, if any of the refugees want to go back and live where they lived before this outrage was inflicted upon them, they should be told they can go back, re-possess their property and dwell there all their days under the protection of the United Nations.

Unless that is done, Hitlerism will accomplish what it set out to do—to annihilate or drive out Jewish and other non-German races from the Hitler empire. Are the Nazis, despite defeat in battle, going to be allowed to gain victory in that basic purpose to which they set their hands?

V

Trees and More Trees

Things being as they are, when anyone speaks of a tree the hearers think of something that can be cut down, sawn into lumber, and converted into a house.

But trees have other uses, as the northern Alberta branch of the Canadian Forestry Association plans to call to public attention—forcefully and persistently, it is to be hoped. At their conference here last week the Association members gave thought mainly to trees as things to be kept alive, not to be cut down.

The conferees were thinking of the eastern slopes of the Rockies as a great watershed which feeds the streams flowing eastward across the plains, carrying moisture where else there would be little, and offering the opportunity to irrigate dry areas and make them productive or more productive. The value of that watershed lies largely in the fact that it is clothed with trees.

Unless it is kept treed, rainfall will probably grow scantier, the run-off when the summer sun thaws the winter snow in the mountains will leave little reserve in the fo'd-hill reservoirs, there will be soil erosion on a serious scale, the opportunity to create extensive irrigation schemes will be gone.

The subject is not new, nor are these reasons why the forest belt should be preserved along the foot-hills strange. They have been stated before, often by specially qualified authorities.

Nor is it new that farming would be better assured and more uniformly successful if wood-lots and shelter-belts were maintained far out on the plains. This, too, has been emphasized by experts, by public officials, by the newspapers, for many years.

But forestry has not gained the place it should hold in the estimation of the western public, nor have forestry policies been developed on the systematic lines adopted in older countries. This is one of the constructive undertakings which should have place in the plans of provincial and federal authorities.

If to be hoped the Forestry Association will put plenty of energy into its publicity campaign, and that it will meet with early and complete success. This western country needs trees, on the watershed and on the prairies, not only for the use that can be made of them when they reach maturity, but for the helpful influence they exert while they grow upon moisture conditions, climate and soil fertility.

London wants the Herman Goering steel works as an instalment on reparations account. And will likely get it, since France is in the Rhineland and Russia is carting away industrial plants from its occupation zone. The Allies are not taking promissory notes this time, as they did at the close of World War I. Some of them may indulge the melancholy reflection that the plants they are taking over were built with money that should have gone to pay the notes.

It is to be a navigation company, a coal mining company, a ferry company, a stone quarrying company, an oil company, a gold and other metal mining company, an electric and water-power company; in fact, it is a company which is seeking for such powers as would enable it, if it had the necessary capital, to control the commercial and industrial development of the Edmonton district. There is every reason to believe we lost heavily by not looking sharply after the C and E charter when it was being granted. LIFE'S DARKEST MOMENT

We Shall Go Back to the Hungry 30s If—

The Question of Jobs

Is Not Settled. Full Employment Is the Question of Questions Now Confronting Business and Government. Business Wants Security, But So Do Men Who Work.

By Charles Herbert Huestis in The Toronto Star

I HAVE BEEN reading Henry Wallace's book in which he sets forth his plan for full employment with the objective: Sixty Million Jobs by 1950—what has to be done by business and government to reach that goal. He believes it can be reached without economic planning, inflation or an unbalanced budget. It is a fine, clear piece of writing and does credit to Mr. Wallace's heart. Whether it does credit to his head also, only time will show. It backs up the Murray Full Employment bill which is having rough going in Congress. Big business does not want any interference by government control—except what is needed to meet times of depression when the capitalist machine jams. Their formula, to quote Stuart Chase, is: "Remove all government controls, delimate the bureaucrats, balance the budget, reduce corporate taxes and let nature have its course." It's the old, old story.

FULL EMPLOYMENT: It's the question of questions at this moment. In the recent federal election campaign every leader was careful to promise full employment if his party was elected. But that was just spoofing: it's a way political leaders have in election campaigns. Mr. Chase writes: "The Phantom has balanced their economy by building pyramids, and western nations in recent years have balanced their economy by defence spending. But the balance wheel is gone . . . What labor on the peace front can take the place of killing? What pyramids, what cathedrals, what monuments will offset $100,000,000,000 worth of aircraft, tanks and howitzers?" That is the problem before us. Relatively it is as great in Canada as it is in the U.S.A.

Mr. Wallace's recipe is the orthodox American way of free enterprise plus such compensatory assistance from the government as may be needed. "It is the policy," to quote from the Murray bill, "of the United States to foster free enterprise." It declares that "everyone seeking work has the right of useful, regular and full employment." The writer it adds—and here is where the recipe begins to fail—that the final responsibility rests with the government "so far as private, state and municipal enterprise fails short thereof." Chambers of commerce and manufacturers' associations in the United States and Canada have little objection to this proposal to temper the wind to their shorn lambs, but as between full employment as proposed by the Murray bill and Mr. Wallace and what they call "our democratic way of life," they would much prefer the latter, no matter how many men walk the streets.

MR. WALLACE CALLS his plan The Framework of Freedom. He says: "From the very birthday of our nation the primary requirement in the relationship between the political and economic systems has been this: how to work out methods by which an ounce of government stimulation, or even a pound of government participation, would result in a pound of private initiative, and enterprise." But Mr. Wallace knows—nobody knows better—that this formula has never in the past resulted in full employment except in war years. The New Republic prints a chart illustrating by curves below and above the normal line, American business from 1869 to 1945. It is a succession of ups and downs, booms and depressions, at intervals of from four to eight years. This has established itself as the normal state of things, in the theology of big business, depressions are acts of God.

BUT MR. WALLACE wants to try once more the old plan, and he certainly makes it look as though this time it might work. Perhaps it will if business will play ball with the government as it did not with Mr. Roosevelt when he was putting over his New Deal and when the war began it was not willing to take the risks. Professor Schlichter thinks the government's job is "to inspire business to take risks." He quotes Calvin Coolidge's terse remark: "The way to give a man work is to get someone to hire him." But business wants security and so do men who work. Professor Schlichter says that nations which seek security never become great. He plumps for "adventure, boldness, leadership." That is what Mr. Wallace is trying to give.

WELL, THE PROBLEM of full employment faces us and we shall have to try to solve it or we shall be back into the hungry '30's even sooner than after the great war. I. F. Stone of The Nation writes: 'Our problem is our wealth of productive capacity, our dearth of brains and our prejudice against planning.' Whether that is true of the U.S.A. or not, it is of Canada. Our productive energies during the war amazed the world. We can do the same kind of job for peace if we have brains enough to plan for full employment under as strict government control as we had during the war. We can't the way we are going, with business men hollering for reduced taxation and the lifting of controls and the government yielding to their demands. One trouble is that men in authority do not realize what is before us. Hon. C. D. Howe last month said: "It is quite obvious that during 1946 we may expect an expansion of peacetime industry comparable with the expansion of industry during the war." Obvious to whom? American federal authorities expect five million jobless by January, 1946, and between eight and 10 before April.

FORTUNE FOR October prints two articles on full employment—one by Milton Gilbert of Mr. Wallace's department of commerce, and the other by Professor S. H. Schlichter of Harvard university. The former backs the Murray bill which, he says, places the responsibility for prosperous economic conditions where it belongs—on the federal government. He writes frankly: "To try to fix responsibility for remedial action in business is a perversion of the basic drive of private enterprise (because) we must accept the profit motive as the guiding consideration in business decisions." Professor Schlichter thinks the government's job is "to inspire business to take risks." He quotes Calvin Coolidge's terse remark: "The way to give a man work is to get someone to hire him." But business wants security and so do men who work. Professor Schlichter says that nations which seek security never become great. He plumps for "adventure, boldness, leadership." Two Trail Partners Came to the Fork, But—

"Jim Would Like This"

Was the Thought That Eased the Pain of Parting for His Old-Time Trapping and Hunting Friend

By W. J. H. in The Winnipeg Free Press

WHEN DR. DAVID A. STEWART, to whose memory the Ninette Sanatorium stands as a permanent monument, built he used to report college news for the Free Press. It was then our friendship began. When he was medical night superintendent of the Winnipeg General Hospital he took me one day to see a patient whose cheerful endurance of a condition irremediable beyond hope he had spoken of to me several times.

At the hospital it was evident the moment they caught sight of each other that there was a strong liking between Dr. Stewart and the man who lay paralyzed, able to move only the great toe of one foot and incapable of speech. Sitting by the bedside was his partner and companion with whom he had trapped and hunted and fished for years in the Lake of the Woods region. They owned timber lands and had other business interests together.

The man by the bedside, who greeted Dr. Stewart as Dave (Dr. Stewart called him Ben) had in his hand a strip of light board, on which was painted an alphabet. "This," he explained to me with a laugh, in which the man in the bed joined with his eyes, "is a talking board. Jim and I talk with." He moved to the foot of the bed and uncovered the toe which Jim could move. Jim, when he desires his voice, spelled out by a motion of it as Ben gently and understandingly moved the alphabet back and forth, the words he wanted to say. It was pitiful, heart-moving to see the two friends talking together in that queer, makshift way of the ingenious Jim's devising.

WHEN DEATH CAME to the relief of the paralyzed man, Ben told Dr. Stewart that he had promised Jim he would bury him on a certain point on the Lake of the Woods on land which they owned. Dr. Stewart joined Ben in the fulfilling of that promise. Having attended to all the preliminary requirements, Ben hired a launch at Kenora to tow the flat-bottomed boat in which rested the coffin in its box. Dr. Steward rode in the launch with the man who ran it, and Ben chose to sit on the box, smoking his pipe in placid silence. Dr. Stewart on his return to Winnipeg told of how they moved on the still lake, with autumn's crimson and gold in the trees along the shore—"Who that has known such days can forget them?"—and the lace-like treetops left behind the mellow sky, with occasional bird flights across the smooth water not disturbing the tranquil beauty of the day; and with now and then the splash of a fish the only sound they heard—the chugging of the launch on such a day becomes somehow subdued, soothing, almost a mere dreamy undertone.

BEN, SMOKING his pipe, was silent for some time. Then he said quietly to himself, "Jim would like this". After another long silence he produced from a bag he had brought with him a trolling line and bait. And when he had thrown the baited hook and spoon overboard he said again, "Jim would like this". Before long he caught a fine pickerel, and it was then, Dr. Stewart said, that he felt Jim would share his satisfaction in that.

When they came to the chosen place, the three men dug the grave, and lowered the boxed coffin into it. Dr. Stewart spoke fitting words, and the three joined in saying the Lord's Prayer. Then they filled in the grave, and the launch left, leaving Jim where he had longed to be.

Scottish Accent

From the Halifax Chronicle

The Burns' Federation has disclosed the awful news that American slang is sneaking into the Scottish dialect. It may not get very far—not if Scots are still like the one who heard an American declaring he came from "God's own country." "Mon," countered the Scot, "ye hae an awful' puir Scots accent." On the other hand, there was the Englishman who maintained that a Scottish accent was nothing but the result of a foreign people trying to speak a language they never could master! And now we are deep in a foible.

Will Impress Value of—

Canadian Citizenship

New Legislation Designed to Give Newcomers Proper Pride in Being Named Citizens of This Dominion

From the Vancouver Province

Canadian citizenship and Canadian nationality have, in the past, been indefinite things governed by several acts. A new piece of legislation, in the House of Commons, is designed to define Canadian citizenship as completely as it can be defined.

A Canadian citizen, in the future, is to be:

1. A person born in Canada or on a Canadian ship or of Canadian parents abroad.

2. A foreign-born person who has been naturalized in Canada.

3. A British subject, not born in Canada, who has resided five years in the Dominion.

The Canadian will still be a British subject, but if he applies for a passport he will be described on it as a Canadian.

The defining of Canadian citizenship is no simple matter. It is complicated by international questions and by our membership in the British Commonwealth. Hon. Paul Martin, father of the new bill, has done his best, but there seem to remain some anomalies.

If Canadian citizenship is to be the thing it ought to be every Canadian should be on exactly the same basis so far as rights, privileges and duties are concerned. The new act does not establish any part of this sort. There will still be, as there are now, several classes of citizens.

The naturalized citizen will still be required, if he goes abroad and remains there over a period of years, to keep his citizenship alive by reporting periodically his intention of remaining a Canadian citizen. This is probably right enough from one point of view. But it gives foreign governments an excuse which some of them will not fail to take, to treat naturalized Canadians differently from native-born Canadians.

The franchise is another case in point. Every Canadian citizen should, by virtue of that citizenship, have the right to vote. The new act does not guarantee this. It leaves it possible for other legislation, Dominion or provincial, to take away this fundamental right from Canadian citizens, naliveborn or naturalized, on racial or other grounds.

A decided merit in the act is that it proposes to make the obtaining of citizenship, through naturalization, a matter of some difficulty with a procedure extending through stages over five years. The idea is to impress the value of citizenship on the newcomer, something that is not done by the existing rather perfunctory procedure.

Army Holds On

Brockville Recorder and Times

The Army bought at least 500 additional typewriters for its Pacific Force. They were no sooner delivered than the Pacific War came to an end and the Pacific Force was dissolved. Yet it hangs on to these typewriters while civilian users cannot buy typewriters at any price and it will probably be some time until the urgent need for them in civilian business is passed.

It would be interesting to know how many other things badly needed by civilians are being kept in storage by the military authorities on the same basis of hoarding anything, including men, upon which they have placed their hands.

Are the armed forces hogging foods, for instance, as they are hogging office equipment, far beyond their legitimate requirements? Do they realize that, the war being over, they don't need to buy on the prodigious scale that accompanied hostilities? As they are continuing to make some 75,000 battle-dresses a month while civilians grow shorter and shorter of clothing, almost anything can be expected of them.

Alaska Highway

North Bay Nugget

Even if the Alaska Highway never turns out to be quite the road to Utopia that some enthusiasts have pictured it, the Canadian people as a whole will approve the Hon. J. A. MacKinnon's announcement that it will not be abandoned.

Just how the road will serve the country in years remains to be seen. There are some who feel certain that it will open great new oil producing areas, lead to spectacular new mineral finds and encourage settlement on rich and unexploited farm lands. We hope that will prove to be correct.

But even if none of those things should materialize, the heavy annual maintenance expenses should be considered worthwhile from the viewpoint of security. The United States built the road. The least Canada can do is keep it up, for adequate overland communications with the Yukon and Alaska are as important to us as they are to anyone.

Better Bide a Wee

From Ottawa Citizen

If the House of Commons now votes its membership what the people reasonably will regard as an increase in wages, on the ground that heavy taxation and increased costs of living make it imperative, how can our Parliamentarians justify retention of the ceiling on the incomes of others? Under these circumstances, it would seem not only wise but equitable to defer the expense allowance until such time as the price and wage controls are discarded.

Awaiting Action

Editor, Bulletin: Chas. Ronan, organizer for the Lethbridge-Medicine Hat Water Conservation Committee, has asked me to draw attention to the text on pages 1106 to 1113 of Hansard on which appears the resolution asking for the completion of the Saint Mary's Dam as moved by Mr. Blackmore as well as a speech in support of the resolution by Mr. McNichol, Conservative Conservative member. Also is shown Mr. Howe's Reply.

Mr. Ronan stresses that all parties seem to be behind the project and we are only awaiting action on the part of the government concerned.

This matter is of grave concern to the province and particularly to the people of the south.

Meat Rationing

Editor, Bulletin: How can you reconcile meat rationing with the fact that all these war years farmers have found it difficult to dispose of their beef and pork, and small-town butchers have to throw away meat which they may not sell. Meat rationing is just half the job.

The other and more important half is to see that the meat which Canadians would have consumed, finds it way overseas instead of being left on the Pacific war farmers having to keep their stock until it becomes a loss. One way would be for merchants to buy from the local farms, thus leaving it to produce to be shipped overseas. Or else to have meat rationing only in the big cities.

Outstanding Grandeur

Editor, Bulletin: Recently I noticed in the Bulletin a request for composition of an anthem to take the place of "O Canada."

During the last war, while overseas, I had the opportunity of hearing the anthems of the various nations played one after the other by a very good orchestra and I was always impressed by the outstanding grandeur of the music of "O Canada."

There appears to be plenty of controversy with regard to the anthem. On that I am no judge but I would take issue with anyone who would challenge the dignity of the music.

MP's Salaries

Editor Bulletin: Almost all Canadians will approve the endorsation of the resolution calling for an increase in the salaries of members of parliament, but it will ill become the government to increase their own salaries by 33⅓ per cent, and refuse to endorse the demand of industrial workers asking for a mere 30 per cent increase.

It would be more understandable to the Canadian citizenry if Mackenzie King tabled a resolution calling for the 30 per cent. increase in wages, for which several unions are asking. Considering the wage of the average working unionist in comparison with the salary of the average member of Parliament.

This'n That

An Edmonton mother who believes in teaching her children household duties has had to remind her eight year old daughter not frequently that her bed must be made before she leaves for school in the morning. On Saturday the young hopeful announced that she wanted to go to a movie, as "the other girls are going." The mother protested that the child was too young, "and besides, all movies are not good." "But this one is," declared the lassie triumphantly, "It's 'Make Your Own Bed'!"

Another local story concerns a still younger child who had heard people talking about "dirty stories." This was announced to the shocked parent and with company present, of course: "I know a dirty story." "You—what? What is it?" asked the embarrassed mother. Replied the child: "Mary fell in the mud."

Manners deteriorate. Yesterday all the seats in a blue line street car were occupied by women and girls, although several men, some of them carrying heavy newspapers, were standing.

Beatings, Clubbings By Nippon Guards Begin at Karenko

Blackened Eyes and Smashed Noses Become Commonplace as Japanese Barbarity Reigns Unchecked at Horror Camp

The beatings of Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, as told in the gaunt hero's own words, in the 31st chapter of his gripping story.—EDITOR.

By GENERAL JONATHAN M. WAINWRIGHT

(Copyright 1945, King Features Syndicate, Inc., and The Edmonton Bulletin. Reproduction in whole or in part strictly prohibited.)

Our starvation was so acute at Karenko prison camp by the fall of 1942 that we took to counting the two or three beans which sometimes appeared in the bottom of our watery soup pail, and if a man received a bean in his soup, and another did not, it made for hard feeling. This must be hard to imagine, but it is true.

IN FACT, THE DIVISION of our pathetic ration became so important to us—for we were on the very borderline of serious and perhaps fatal malnutrition—that we asked an officer to divide our food for us as impartially as possible.

Our craving for sustenance was such that we stood over this man while he attended to each split-up of the food that came to us from the kitchen. Finally, he said he could not do this job any longer, and quit. We then voted for Maj. Gen. George F. Moore to divide the food.

HE ACCEPTED, BUT WITH the reservation that he could attend to the splitting of the rice and the soup behind a closed door, so that there could be no supervision. We would wait outside, bereft of anything in our minds except our never-ending, excruciating hunger.

MAJ.-GEN. BECKWITH-SMITH died on the morning of Armistice Day, 1942, of diphtheria and heart failure—and starvation. The American officer had become very fond of this plucky Englishman, but while we were grieved to see him go some of us felt in our hearts that he was better off than the rest of us.

Though Beckwith - Smith was gone, we nevertheless went through with our plan to observe Armistice Day. He would have been a party to that plan. At 11 a.m. that day every one of the prisoners in camp stopped whatever they were doing, or saying, and for the next two minutes none of us spoke. We made it as inconspicuous as possible, and felt a little better for having done it.

Beckwith-Smith's body was cremated and the senior British, American and Dutch officers attended the burial of the urn.

By December 12, 1942, my weight was down to 125 1-3 pounds. It was on this day that I was permitted for the first time to write to my wife, with the usual restrictions. There were so many rules, however, that there was little to write, unless a man wanted to lie to keep up his own or his family's courage.

On this day—just 36½ years since the day I graduated from West Point—I did not give my wife the figure of my weight. I just told her, in the most innocent-appearing phrasing possible, that I now weighed exactly what I did when I graduated from the Point. That was all she needed.

* * *

I WAS TAKEN SICK the night of Dec. 12 and for the next few days lay on my bunk with a fever and chills. It was a combination of ailments, mostly starvation. Among the ailments was beri beri, which I had contracted several months earlier. In my last days at Tarlac I had been walking across a wooden floor when Brig. Gen. Lewis Beebe stopped me.

"Say, you've got the foot slap," he said.

Only then did I notice the tell-tale way in which the soles of my shoes were slapping the floor. The dry type of beri beri causes the muscles in the shins and ankles to lose their sensitivity with the result that when the heel is placed on the ground while walking, the rest of the foot quickly collapses.

BERI BERI OR NOT, and most of us at Karenko had it, we eventually were forced to work. We decided that it was either work or death by starvation, which left us little choice. The Jap guards had insinuated that if we did go to work we would be supplied with "work rice", that is, an extra portion allotted to workers.

But the Jap mind is a baffling mesh, and going to work was not as easy as expressing the willingness. We had to appeal to them to permit us to work. Some of us had a fear that we were breaking down their lofty resolve to uphold Geneva Convention.

But at last the absurd negotiations were done with, and we were told that we would work on an area just outside the prison barriers, an area which would be cleared for a truck farm. Whatever we raised, they told us we could eat. Each officer was given a task while the Japs called a kuba and we called a chanicle, and marched off.

A chanicle is a dull-edged, wide and very heavy adze mounted on a shaft about 2½ feet long. It is used for breaking soil, cutting brush or grass and grubbing for roots and rocks.

By this time we were in such atrocious physical condition, however, that for many of the senior officers this work was a dangerous gamble with our lives. It was difficult even to walk on our clogs to the area we had to clear. In my case I came to depend more and more on the light walking stick which Gen. MacArthur had left for me on Corregidor when he departed.

BUT SLOWLY and painfully we did clear our first patch of ground and prepared it for the planting of various seeds. But we were not entrusted with the seeds. The Japs knew very well we would have eaten them.

As for our "work rice" we soon saw that the Japs were using this promise as another means of mocking us. At least half of the time they refused to give it to us. The "work rice" we did get therefore was not enough to compensate for the strength we were expending on our tasks of walking to and from the land and clearing it. The land became much harder to clear, in addition, and our conditions sank accordingly. Some of the heavier Dutch officers lost nearly 100 pounds.

ONE DAY IN DECEMBER I was ordered by "Boots"—Lt. Nakashima—to get Generals Percival and Terporten and Governor General Tjarda VanStarkenbourg and bring them before him. We lined up and "Boots" waited until we bowed. Then he launched into a long and furious charge that Jap interpreters in the United States, India and Australia were being "grossly mistreated."

In my case he demanded that I write to the war department and "protest" this treatment of Japs in the United States. If I refused, he said, our own treatment at Karenko would become worse. With the help of Generals King, Moore, Beebe and Funk I did put a letter together the next day, written in such a way as to underline the fact that it was coerced.

BUT THE JAPS never waited for that letter to reach its destination. In fact, after "Boots" dismissed us that day, 24 hours before the letter was written, we saw him march across the parade grounds on his queer, tight riding boots and into the steps toward the administration buildings.

I went back to my room and while sitting there I saw "Boots" return, line up the Jap guard, and saw him speak at length to his men.

I do not know what he said to them. But I do know that immediately thereafter all of us began to undergo indiscriminate slappings, beatings and clubbings.

IT WAS ON THIS NIGHT that I was first struck. After the 8 p.m. roll call, knowing I had a half-hour before I had to be in bed, I picked up my towel and went to the back of the barracks to the vile latrine.

Just as I came out of the latrine and started for the washing spigots on the rear porch of the barracks, I noticed a Jap sentry standing nearby. He was a short, stocky, muscular man.

I turned a bit and bowed to him, with the usual sick feeling in my stomach and started to go on. But he shouted something at me and then motioned to me to step closer to him. I walked over to him.

"Yes?" I asked. A group of American officers nearby stopped to watch.

THE JAP SWUNG very quickly and slapped me across the face. It was a stinging blow, and in my throat I felt a rising gorge of hate and despair.

I stood there. Encouraged by what he had done he slapped me again, then again, and then a fourth time. Each time he hit me he shouted "Japanese in America!"

The blows made my legs weaker but I was determined not to fall at the feet of a rat like that.

He saw that I was not going down, so he took a lunge at me and hit me on the left jaw with his fist. And then I fell. I was only half-conscious from the blow, but the part of my consciousness that was alive told me that here was the very pit of my life.

I SHOOK MY HEAD clear, got up and walked slowly over to the water spigot, and after a time I had strength enough to turn on the water and wash myself.

Gen. King was in bed and the light was out when I got back to my room. I told him about it, and lay there awake the rest of the night.

The next day was inspection day, and it was my duty to help Gen. King clean and dust our little room. We were at work in there, and I was still shaking from the night before, when our door was suddenly flung open and a Jap sentry jumped in and roared something at us.

MY BACK WAS TURNED to the door at the moment, and I was dusting off the shelf that held our mess bowls. And in my nervousness I accidentally knocked one of the bowls off the shelf.

I tried to catch it before it hit the table below, but I missed—and it broke in many pieces.

His bayonet went into my left wrist, and he beat me about the face with his right hand for what seemed like a terribly long time. Then, exhausted he stopped and screamed at me to pick up the broken pieces of the dish.

I picked them up. He behind me and prodded me out of the room, in front of my silent men, and marched me over to the guard-house, where he lined me up in front of the sergeant of the guard and made his report.

All I could do was stand there, holding the bits of the dish. My wrist bled badly, the blood running down my fingers and dropping to the ground.

I felt myself growing quite faint for I was in such awful physical condition. The sergeant of the guard listened to the long report of the sentry, looked at my wrist, and then ordered me to go to the hospital.

COL. HAROLD GLATTLEY, of our Medical Corps, bandaged my wrist, cursing quietly while he worked.

Our beatings never stopped at Karenko. Some of the enlisted men were slugged as many as three times every day, and it became a rare sight to find one whose eyes were not blacked, nose mashed or head and body full of lumps.

Our men were beaten sometimes with rifle butts, for many undetermined infractions of rules—rules we often did not know about until we found ourselves breaking them. The Jap rules often were made up on the spur of the moment.

ONE OF THE CRUELEST beatings was the one taken by Lt.-Gen. Sir L. M. Heath, a grand and decent man. He had been quite badly wounded in the First World War, and short three inches of bone had been removed from his left arm between the elbow and the shoulder. His left arm simply hung by its flesh and muscle. To relieve the drag upon this tissue, Gen. Heath had small loops sewn on the left lower pocket of his blouse. He would fit his fingers into the loops to support his arm.

A Jap private watched him approach one day. Gen. Heath saluted as correctly as any man could salute, but the private pretended to believe that Heath had saluted while his left hand was in his pocket.

The Jap raised his gun and beat Gen. Heath unmercifully over the head and face with the barrel of the weapon. Then he beat the butt of the gun into the boneless portion of the British general's bad arm and left him lying there in the dirt hardly conscious and badly battered.

FOR WEEKS AFTER that Heath's eyes were like twin pools of blood, and his left arm had to be put in a sling.

The weather turned cold about the time the beatings began, and we had so little meat around our bones that we shivered perpetually. If they would have given us our shoes it would have been helpful, but they never would.

The cold and our condition had a bad effect on our kidneys. Most of us, young and old, were forced to get up about every hour of the night, find our clogs outside, and paddle through the cold night air to the latrine.

THE JAPS WOULD be waiting for us at the latrine. They knew we had to come and it saved them the trouble of searching for us. Almost everyone who went in was slapped, kicked or abused. Sometimes the sentries would line up 20 or 30 of us outside the latrine and then go down the line, hitting us in the faces.

I tell you it was an unbearable nightmare. But there was nothing to do but bear it.

I was badly beaten one night at the latrine for coming in the wrong door to emerge from the terrible place. There was no use explaining that I had not heard that the rule had been changed. Nothing was an excuse at Karenko. It was deep-dyed hell.

NO AMERICAN CAN take a punch without a suffusing desire to fight back. Yet we had to swallow our rage and take it. One of our officers could bear no more one day and he instinctively drew back his fist to hit a Jap private who was slapping him pitilessly. But he never threw the punch.

The Jap private let loose an inwas honored with scrupulous punctilio. The German Legation was forbidden to employ any wireless equipment, and Irish authorities provided by the British with direction-finding apparatus, kept a permanent vigil to ensure that these instructions were fulfilled.

It was known, however, that a wireless transmitter was in the German Legation, and, as D-Day approached, the Allied military authorities were alarmed lest a leakage should occur and lest the German Legation might send out a message which might do irreparable harm to the Allied cause. When the possibility was made plain to De Valera, he forced the Germans to hand over their transmitter, which was safely stored in the vaults of a Dublin bank on Christmas Eve, 1943. The news of this event can scarcely have been the least acceptable Christmas present received that year by General Eisenhower and his staff. The significance of this story is underlined by the fact that the British representative in Dublin, Sir John Maffey, had three transmitters in constant use throughout the war. He also, of course, had the advantage of direct telephone communication with London.

De Valera's conception of neutrality resulted in widely different treatment of Allied and German airmen who force-landed on Irish territory. All German air crews who landed on Irish soil were immediately interned, on the grounds that they had been engaged on operational flights. The proximity of England to Ireland, however, enabled the convenient fiction to be maintained that all British and American airmen, even if bombs were found in their aircraft, had only been out on training flights. This valuable formula enabled many hundreds of British and American airmen to cross the border into Ulster and so return to England. At a later date, RAF ground crews were allowed to cross the border from Ulster and repair damaged aircraft, which were subsequently flown to England.

WHILST ALWAYS refusing to allow the Allies the open use of the Treaty ports of Berehaven, Queenstown and Lough Swilly, the De Valera government has allowed the British to station tugs there which were used for rescuing merchant ships which had been crippled by U-boats. We were also permitted to base motor torpedo boats on the Treaty ports for the purpose of air sea rescue. These boats were permitted to be armed for their own defense and, of course, if they met sane roar, seized his gun in both hands and would have killed the sentry on the spot if a guard had not found an interpreter just then and begged him to explain to the soldier that our hands were tied.

THE OFFICERS' LIFE was spared, but he was placed in one of the solitary confinement cells for days, with next to no food. There were no beds in any of these cells. Men placed in solitary were forced to remain standing in the frigid little rooms from 6 a.m. until 9 p.m. every day, day after day. Most of them had to be dragged out when their sentences were finished.

And thus it was at Karenko until Christmas, 1942.

Exportable Wheat Is Moving to West

The stream of Alberta's exportable wheat surplus has turned from American to the west as a result of a settlement in the weekly news letters issued by the provincial publications branch. Most of this is said to be destined for the Russian, Indian, Chinese and South American markets by way of Vancouver.

It is also stated that sacking equipment has been installed at terminal elevators to meet requirements of the Pacific market, particularly in Russia, which prefers sacked grain. Until now it has been shipped in bulk.

It is believed that ultimately grain for the United Kingdom market will also travel by way of the Pacific port.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

DUCKS Unlimited reports the first nearly-normal fall migration of waterfowl for several years, which should mean less spectacular shooting in a few favored States and more normal in many others than had been the case in recent years.

Season for ducks practically finished in most sections of the prairies by Saturday, Nov. 3, and that two days later, only a few thousand hardy mallards remained. Exceptionally good goose hunting was reported.

Most blue-wing teal and pintails left during the latter half of September, and majority of canvasback headed south around Oct. 24, with a great migration of greenwing teal four days after that. The heavy movement of mallards and bluebills began Oct. 29.

Fall precipitation over most of the duck nesting range was well above normal, which should mean surface water conditions will be favorable for next spring's nesting. Cold backward spring in 1945, flooding in some areas and drought in others later on, hit the duck crop hard, with the result there was only a small net increase in duck population this fall as compared to a year ago.

Winnipeg Bombers seemingly had a terrific time getting that football game with Calgary Stampeders played, and now it looks as if they'll have a tough session keeping it played.

Regina Abbotts checked in with that win a little earlier this year, but then judging by the temperatures here the past few days, the season is a little more advanced this fall.

Gordon Blanchard (Duke) Keats will referee the Vancouver-New Westminster game tonight. Don Campbell has been released by the Canucks, Edmonton Canadians are said to be slated for three-game series at the coast early in December.

JOE FRASER, manager of Alberta's Golden Bears, says that Bill Ingram, "was the only backfielder brought home from Vancouver in one piece."

It appears that Bob Freese had a couple of ribs cracked in the first game at UBC, Mickey Halash, has one black eye in addition to having been fairly successfully crocked up on the very first play. And Paddy Westcott is a knee casualty and had to retire before the end of the final encounter.

Clarkson, the boys say, is exactly the human dynamo he's credited as being. The first game was played at Capilano baseball stadium, where there is a grass infield excepting for the bases and pitcher paths where the ground was frozen. Second was at the University stadium where there is a fine grass field. Last Thursday Vancouver had six inches of snow.

The Bears didn't bring the Hardy Cup back with them, but nevertheless they were the first senior return to Edmonton by an enthusiastic group of well over 100 students—even the Varsity band was at the station.

Colorful Career Of Babe Herman Comes to End

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(BUP)—The saga of a great and colorful baseball player came to a colorless end just a few weeks back.

The item was neatly hidden among other releases sent out by the Brooklyn Dodgers. In fact, there were few people who even saw it. Only when it was announced over the radio did baseball fans get the full meaning. Babe Herman — colorful Babe—had been given his outright release by the Dodgers.

Then the fans got the idea. Babe was going back to the sticks again. The Dodgers called him from there in the middle of last season to help out as a pinch hitter. And Babe, with the years of time hanging on his shoulders, had grabbed his war club and answered the challenge.

YOUTHFUL BROOKLYN, fans, whose only knowledge of Herman was what they had gotten from the past gave the Babe a roar of welcome that first time as a pinch hitter. He came swaggering to the plate. They made him feel like he was playing back in the middle twenties—they knew he had one of the most potent bats and best throwing arms on the Dodger club. And when Babe smashed out a hit, the fans screamed in delight. That was their Herman of old, the one they had heard so much of. And then—when Herman took a nose dive rounding first base and had to scramble back to the safety bag—he'd in amusement. Yes this was the Babe Herman of old—a guy who could hit with the best of them and run bases like any guy you ever saw.

That's why Dodger fans must have felt a tinge of sorrow when the news leaked out that Babe Herman had left the Brooks again—this time for good. He did a pretty good job in his role as a pinch-hitter last season. But with the many youthful stars returning from the armed forces there just won't be room in Flatbush for the old-timer.

THERE'S BEEN so many tales told of Herman's crazy antics on the baseballs and the crazy way he fielded a fly ball that a lot of the younger fans seem to have forgotten that the Babe was every inch a ball player. The year Bill Terry of the Giants won the National League batting crown with a .401 mark Herman gave him a run for his money—finishing with a brilliant .393.

But it's those crazy stories about the way Babe ran the base paths that fans like. We'd like to tell of an incident that happened nearly 20 years ago—a story that sounds different each time it's told.

It happened during the middle of August during the 1926 season. The Dodgers were playing a double bill against Boston in Brooklyn. The epic occurred in the seventh inning of the first game.

JOHNNY BUTLER led off in the Dodger half of that frame with a single and promptly tallied when Hank Deberry followed with a double.

With one run in and still none away Dazzy Vance singled Deberry to third. Boston pitcher Johnny Wertz let Chick Fewster to load the sacks and get the old fox confused. The Boston manager, George Mogridge took over the pitching chores for the Beantowners and persuaded Merwin Jacobsin to pop up for the first out.

Then the brilliant and colorful Babe Herman swaggered to the plate. He picked one to his liking and whaled a long drive to centre field for an easy double.

GET THAT PICTURE if you can. Herman has unloaded a double that should unload a base full of Brooklyn runners.

And so what happens?

Well, Deberry had little trouble scoring from his position at third base. But after that—the Dodger base running got rather confused. Vance, on second when Babe hit the double, was afraid that the ball would be caught and he'd be stuck for home until it hit the ground. As a result he was caught on the throw-in and had to dash back to third base after rounding the sack. Fewster, on first base when Herman hit, knew the slow was in for extra bases and was halfway between second and third when Vance decided not to try for home. In the meantime Herman hadn't stopped to see where anyone was going. After dropping his bat, he had lowered his head and was out they were in the ring about seven minutes.

THE SEMI-MAIN event between Earl McCready and Pierre DeGlane provided the fans with more real wrestling than has been seen here for a considerable time and the cash customers obviously enjoyed it.

McCready took the match in straight falls, the first coming in 16 minutes, 12 seconds with a series of leg strangles. Next time Earl finished off the Montreal Frenchman in a trifle under 14 minutes with his "McCready special," the octupus.

EMIL VAN VELZEN and Steve Jossul also put on a good show in the preliminary. Emil taking the odd fall in three with a body scissors and press in seven minutes. Van Velzen had won the first with a straight body press in 8:19. Jossul bouncing back with a Boston crab to take the second in about four minutes.

Wally Beaumont refereed all three matches. Timers were Bill Brown, ex-chief A. G. Shute and Ald. Sid Bowcott.

SUNDELLY—To the amazement of all Flatbush — there were three Dodger runners trying to perch on third base at one time! With Vance and Fewster both holding a foot apiece, the Babe decided second base was more inviting and started backtracking. In the meantime Fewster—heretofore himself out—stepped off the base and was immediately tagged by the Boston third baseker Eddie Taylor who had received the throw-in from the outfield. Taylor then shot the horse-hide down to second base in time to get the surprised Babe, who was just puffing in.

And there you have it—and it's true. One single, two doubles and a hit batsman and only one run scored!

It could happen only in Brooklyn.

DOUBLE DEAD HEAT—Four horses started in the Helena Handicap at Jamaica and wound up in a double dead heat, believed to be the first time in the history of the track that this has happened.. In top photo, Pindus (on the rail) with A. Kirkland up, and Omamax, T. Atkinson aboard, cross the line together for first. Pindus paid $2.60 and Omamax $4.60. Running right behind the first two horses in the same race, photo below, are Petrol Point, J. Renick up, and Oatmeal (3), jockeyed by W. D. Wright. No show prices were paid.

Panvini Rings Up 16 Points

ALASKAN Division provided a problem for the masterminds of the other five teams in the Edmonton Senior Men's Basketball League Monday night when they floored a fast, smooth-working quintet that came through with an impressive 39-15 victory over YMCA in the first game for these two squads. Canadian Legion turned back RCAF 26-19 in the opening half of the twin bill at NWAC.

Five holdovers of Division's last year's service league entry stepped onto the court for the initial tossup and those same five—Bob Weiss, John Panvini, Willis Farnham, Rex Williams and Carl Miller—clicked just about as regular as time in the first half to build up a 26-7 margin before they waked off at the breather.

IT WAS A ONE SIDED affair, as indicated by the score, but the winners kept the slim crowd interested with their smooth combination and sharp-shooting—especially the sniping of Panvini and Williams, a pair of tall forwards who averaged 50 per cent in their shooting in keeping the scoring ball rolling.

Tossing most of his points from the shade of the hoop, Panvini became a threat for this season's scoring honors, unless some very capable guard can hamper his inspiring effort, when he dropped in 16 counters, all field goals. Williams added 10 points, Weiss five, Farnham four, Lorne Si. Amand two and Miller and Bob Schooley one each to make up the largest score of the infant season.

AFTER ESTABLISHING their comfortable lead in the first half, Division threw in the reserves in the third and fourth quarters and still managed to maintain their lead. The Y crew forced the play for the last 10-minute stretch, but couldn't even threaten the sizable lead held by the American gang.

The YMCA cagers, led by Gordon Speers, Archie Clouston and Norm Swail, were obviously suffering from lack of practice and with a few more workouts on a large floor, should produce tough opposition.

Following is the boxscore:

LEGION TAKES EARLY LEAD IN WINNING

Canadian Legion Vets, their lineup dotted by hoopsters who played considerable basketball here before entering the service, took an early lead and withstood a last quarter barrage by the RCAF crew from North West Air Command to mark up their first victory, a 26-19 triumph.

Dale Main provided the spark for the Vet's attack and led the way with 10 points while Murray Ayre headed the RCAF drive with nine counters.

The Legion club took a 6-2 lead in the first quarter on points marked up by Main and Johnny Ferguson and managed to increase it in the third period to seven.

The winners outscored Air Force 7-2 in the second to make it 13-4 at the half and then added 13 more in 11 while holding the opposition to seven in a fast third canto. Entering the last frame with a neat 24-11 edge, the Veterans slowed up considerably and were outscored 8-2, but were always at a safe distance.

The Canadian Legion entry, on their opening performance, also appeared as though they will give any of the other clubs a run for it, as they took their place at the top of the six-club circuit with Varsity and Alaskan Division.

Saskatoon Takes Over Lead By Edging Out Regina 6-5

SASKATOON, Nov. 13.—(CP)—Saskatoon Elks defeated Regina Caps 6-5 in a Western Canada Senior Hockey League game before 2,500 fans here last night.

Each team scored twice in the first period, Regina gained a 5-4 lead in the second and Elks ran in the only two counters of the third period to clinch the honors and take over sole possession of first place in the league race.

JACK MILLER, a graduate from Moose Jaw Canucks, bagged three of Elks goals. Gordon Buttrey, with the local navy junior team last winter, accounted for two and Ken Ullyot netted the other.

REGINA OPENED the scoring when Vern Gardiner, left uncovered in front of the Saskatoon net, picked up Lancien's pass and beat Almas easily. Buttrey and Lundy combined for the Elks's tieing marker and four minutes later Miller scored his first goal of the night off a relay from Glenn Richardson. Barrett tied the score late in the period off a rush with Hayes and Stewart. Jack Fenning was injured in a pile up around the Regina net before the period ended and Billy Brennan, the Elks spare goalie, took over for the second period.

PLAY WAS RAGGED during the second period. Buttrey shot Saskatoon into the lead on a rush with Lundy and Art Shoquist. Hayes, on Gardiner's pass, deadlocked the score and Ken Stewart rapped in two goals inside three minutes.

Elks got one counter back in the last minute of the period as Ken Ullyot tallied off Miller's pass.

Miller tied the score after 28 seconds of play in the third period when his centre ice shot evaded Brennan.

Calgary Protests Bomber Win For Refusal Substitutions

REGINA, Nov. 13.—(CP)—N. J. (Piffles) Taylor, president of the Western Canada Rugby Football Union, declared Monday that Saturday's sudden-death western rugby final in Winnipeg had been protested by Calgary Stampeders. Winnipeg Blue Bombers won the game 9-5 with a last quarter touchdown.

A wire from A. A. McGillis, secretary of the Calgary Club, said Stampeders were protesting because they were not allowed "the proper substitutions" under Canadian Rugby Union rules. A second wire from Calgary was demanded, with the same financial guarantee given for the Winnipeg fixture.

Taylor said no decision on the protest Mr. Taylor said he would await further information from Secretary-Treasurer Lew Hayward and other officials of both clubs.

STAMPEDERS DECIDE PRESS FOR DECISION

CALGARY, No. 13.—(CP)—After considerable indecision on withdrawing or allowing their original protest to stand, the Stampeder management announced it was going to press for a decision from western gridiron officials.

A. A. McGillis, Calgarian secretary, notified N. J. (Piffles) Taylor of Regina, Western Canada football president, that the protest was based on the claim the Calgary club had been prevented legal substitution in the fourth period. The timekeeper had passed up Byron Nelson.

Ellsworth Vines Swings Clubs Very Effectively

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 13.—(BUP)—Changing from racquets to golf clubs doesn't seem to bother Ellsworth Vines—former world tennis champion.

Many "high-pockets" recently captured the southern California open with a sparkling 54-hole total of 213.

After began puttering around golf greens back in 1932—when he still was king-pin of the tennis courts.

When he ran out of competition on the courts he turned to golf. But Vines had more trouble with coordination than most golf beginners. His early scores were in the 150's.

In 1937, Vines figures age had turned against him and he could no longer stand up to stars like Don Budge, and Fred Perry.

So the great king of the courts turned to golf.

Last year he won the Pike's Peak and Rocky Mountain open championship. This year he took the Fort Collins, Colorado Crown, in addition to the Southern Cal title.

Allie Stolz Wins Over Willie Joyce

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Flashing the form that made him one of the classiest lightweights in the business a few seasons back, curly-haired Allie Stolz punched a clear-cut 10-round decision over Willie Joyce, high-ranking Gary, Ind., negro, in Madison Square Garden last night. Stolz weighed 134, Joyce 137.

Although he lost two rounds by the scores, the Newark, N.J., boxing master took command from the start and never was behind as he belted Joyce around to win the unanimous verdict of both judges and referee Frankie Fullam. The Associated Press score card gave Stolz seven rounds, Joyce two, and called one even.

MONTREAL, Nov. 13.—(CP)—Quebec's Provincial Senior Hockey League, which ceased operations at the beginning of the war will resume play Nov. 18 on a six-team basis.

League Secretary Ernest Compte said Monday franchises have been granted to five Quebec teams, Lachine, Hull, Sherbrooke, Drummondville and Victoriaville, and to Cornwall, Ont.

Larry French Out

Regina Abbotts Beat Commandos

REGINA, Nov. 13.—(CP)—Regina Abbotts, in their seventh win in three years, Monday night defeated Regina Commandos 3-2 in a Southern Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League overtime fixture. The victory pulled Abbotts out of the basement spot into third place.

The teams were tied at 2-2 at the end of the third and Maurice Young scored the deciding counter at six minutes after the extra period had opened. Dune Fisher and Ed Varga got Abbotts' other goals and Jim Fairburn and Ray Gates counted for Commandos.

Montrealer Seeks Badminton Title

MONTREAL, Nov. 13.—(CP)—Doug Grant of Montreal, four times winner of the Canadian amateur badminton championship, said Monday he has challenged Jack Purcell of Toronto for the world's professional crown.

Purcell, who twice held the Canadian amateur laurels, has been professional champion for 13 years. Grant's last amateur victory was against Earl Burch of Vancouver in Winnipeg in 1936.

Grant and Purcell have never met in match play.

Negro Leagues Protest Signing Jackie Robinson

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The Negro National and American leagues revealed Monday they had filed an official protest with baseball commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler on the signing of Jackie Robinson, a member of the Kansas City Monarchs, by Brooklyn president Branch Rickey for the Dodgers' Montreal farm in the International league.

A letter addressed to Chandler, the two Negro loops, following a joint meeting here last Friday, said they wished it understood they were glad to see Negro players get the opportunity to play in white organized baseball, but were protesting the "way it was done."

Charging Rickey with "piracy", Dr. J. B. Martin, president of the Negro American league, and W. Wilson, National league president, insisted that Robinson had made a verbal agreement to play with the Monarchs in 1946, but was lured away by the Dodgers' boss.

Feller Proposes Pre-Season Course

DAVENPORT, Ia., Nov. 13—(AP)—Bob Feller, Cleveland Indians pitcher and navy veteran, Monday proposed that baseball clubs and baseball leagues sponsor a three-week pre-training refresher course for returning players who will rejoin their clubs next spring.

The Cleveland pitcher said he intends to contact returned veterans to serve as instructors, singling out such men as Hank Greenberg, Virgil Trucks and Spud Chandler.

Reach Compromise In Soccer Dispute

MANCHESTER, England, Nov. 13.—(CP)—Britain's professional soccer players and club owners reached a compromise on wages and other issues Monday, averting a strike that threatened to tie up the popular sport.

Under the agreement, reached in a three-hour conference, the maximum pay for players will be increased immediately from £8 ($35.60) to £9 ($40.05) weekly and match play payment will be increased from £4 to £5.

The strike, based on demands for an increase to £12 weekly, had been set for Nov. 17.

Pre-war regulations regarding match bonuses, amounting to £2 to each player for a winning game and £1 for a draw, will go into effect Dec. 1, it was announced.

Wright Gains Mat Decision When Numan Disqualified

Jim Wright, over-size Texan, won his match with Ted Numan, Columbus weight-lifting at the Empire theatre on Monday night via the disqualification route. It was the main event of a three-bout wrestling card before a fairly well filled house.

With the count standing at a horse apiece, Numan apparently developed a sudden urge to turn the affair into a straight slugging contest. Referee Wally Beaumont, on the receiving end of a few swings himself, warned Numan two or three times, and finally awarded the decision to Wright.

SINCE NOTHING seems incredible where wrestling is concerned, and probably accustomed to expect almost anything from Wright, the fans appeared to enjoy watching unorthodoxy boomerang on the big boy. However, a referee doesn't have to—and in this case didn't—tolerate such a situation too long.

Numan had won the first fall with a series of flying headlocks in just over 14 minutes. Wright came back in about eight to square the match with a stepover leg-strangle. Third time the two came

Bruins Again Real Hockey Club

By JOHN D. HAMILTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(CP)—Don't look now, friends, but Arthur Ross, the dour hockey man from Boston, is getting ready to burst into the biggest grin he's had in years.

The reason for his startling geniality is that his beloved Boston Bruins are once again a real hockey team. Their 7-1 victory over New York Rangers here Sunday night was strictly pre-war.

FOR THE LAST three or four years Mr. Ross hasn't had a thing to smile about in connection with his National Hockey League club. With stars like goalie Frank Brimsek, the entire Kilrea Kids line, the scrappy Terry Reardon, off to the ears, any resemblance between the Bruins and a big league club was strictly coincidental.

But, after a slow start, the Boston team hit its stride Sunday night. In their first six games, Bruins won two, lost three and tied one to hold down fourth place in the NHL standings. But they larruped the living daylights out of the Rangers Sunday—no great feat in itself, but pointing agreeable in the general direction of that dented mug, the Stanley cup.

THE IMPORTANT factor about the 7-1 victory was that Bruins uncorked three superlative forward lines, were effective on defence and were more than passable in goal.

Furthermore, the Boston squad was well organized and knew what it was doing on the ice. While a few forward passes, he usually had somebody to receive the puck. When the opposition attacked, Paul Bibeault usually had two or three stalwarts guarding the nets in front of him.

UP FRONT the "Kitchener Kids" —minus Right Wing Bobby Bauer, who is nursing a bruised shoulder—showed promise of becoming the old effective combo which drove opposition goalies to distraction before Bauer, Milt Schmidt and Woody Dumart went into the RCAF. Dumart got two goals and Schmidt drew assists on both. Jack McGill subbed effectively for Bauer on right wing.

The high scoring front line of Bill Cowley, Herbie Cain and Terry Reardon was as smooth as ever. And the third line of Bep Guidolin, Bill Shill and Don Gallinger looked as if it was ready for its best season.

Today's Sport Parade

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(BUP)—The U.S. Army's football team fiddled today while the Rose Bowl committee burned and the possibility that the crushing Cadets might take H. Greeley's advice and go west, focused attention on the recent remarks of Sen. William Langer of North Dakota.

Incensed that the east holds a monopoly on the Army-Navy football game, the senator suggested that the game should be given to a different state every year. On first glance that looks like a typical and fanciful filibuster, but, modified, it could be an idea with real merit.

Although Langer is a farmer, as well as a lawyer, his proposition shows he doesn't know his pigskin cais. For instance, if the game was awarded on an alphabetical basis, Wyoming wouldn't get the game until 1992—and that's a long time for the cowboy state to wait.

YET THERE'S no denying that every section of the country should get a shot at the classic, one of the year's outstanding sporting events. Nothing produces the electric tension, the spine-chilling thrill that raises goose bumps on your neck and your arms, like the sight of those future generals and admirals as they march with faultless precision.

No section of the country should have this thrill as its own, year in and year out, simply because the academics are in the east. The oil man in Texas; the ranchers in Dakplains; the farmer in the mid-west; the cotton broker in the south and the studio worker on the west coast has a right to see this spectacle in his own setting. They all pay their proportionate share of the freight.

SO THE IDEAL setup for the blue ribbon gridiron classic, always a thriller despite the calibre of the football involved, would be to put it on a sectional basis. For the sake of argument, it could be awarded consecutively to Durham, N.C.; New Orleans, Dallas in the southwest; Chicago for the mid-west; Denver in the Rocky Mountain area; put into the rose bowl for Southern California and to San Francisco, Portland or Seattle for the northwest.

First of all, it's far more than a football game, this display by youngsters wearing their country's hopes and hearts on their sleeves. But you can answer even that one by taking only the senior classes from both academies. Those kids look grand in their uniforms and a lot of other boys would like to be in their shoes but it's a pretty good lad who can come through those four rough years at the academies with flying colors.

AND IN THIS TRIP, the seniors would have something additional for which to work. But there would still be enough of them, with their straight, strong ranks, to provide the pre-game show which is the real window dressing for the game of the year. And while it would be high reward to those boys about to become men in khaki and blue, it also would be remuneration to the tax-paying citizens who make it possible, the Texas oil workers, the ranchers, the cotton and wheat farmers, the lumber workers and the other people out across the country who otherwise might never see one of the grandest and most inspiring shows of the sporting world.

So the answer would seem to be to put the game on a sectional basis, progressing from the east to the south, the southwest, the midwest, the Rockies and the west. The only difficulty is that it's too sensible and, while many people talk a good game, there's nobody to carry the ball.

TORONTO, Nov. 12.—(CP)—Don't want to any sympathy for Paul Thompson just because Chicago Black Hawks, the team he coached last season, are riding the National Hockey League heights. Thompson was relieved of his duties when the Hawks finished a straggling fifth in the 1944-45 race, but he seems to have a better job with Vancouver Canucks, of the Pacific Coast League.

Jerry Mitchell, columnist for the New York Post, says Thompson isn't drawing as much with Canucks as he did with Hawks, but "He'll wind up with more, because he wouldn't sign until they agreed to let him run concessions at the Canuck home rink, too."

IN TORONTO a fund is being collected for Joe McCulloch, the Gull Lake, Sask., steeplechase rider who suffered a serious brain injury when thrown in a New York race a couple of months ago. The fund was started by Horseman Dan Kennedy of Winnipeg whose promising Canadian-bred two-year-old Canadian Flag has been destroyed because of injuries suffered in fall racing.

McCulloch was perhaps Canada's outstanding rider over the jumps before his injury. Now Jim (Globe and Mail) Coleman reports McCulloch "is going to be in need of constant medical care for several years to come".

AROUND THE CIRCUIT: The parks board hockey league in Regina, which operates mite, bantam, midget, juvenile and junior hockey in the Saskatchewan city, announces through secretary Albert Booth it was badly hit by the war and had only 74 teams in operation last year. With 74 teams in a city the size of Regina, what will they do in piping times of peace? . . . Earl Robertson, who flashed overnight from minor league goalie to NHL star in a Stanley cup playoff between Detroit and New York in 1937, has been appointed to coach Edmonton Canadians, one of the country's top junior teams.

Another Amateur Takes a Major Golf Tournament

DURHAM, N.C., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Golfing history was made here Sunday as amateur Frank Stranahan of Toledo, O., won the Durham open tournament with a score of 277 and handed the game's professional stars their second successive defeat within a week.

It was the first time that amateurs had outscored the professionals in two straight open tournaments. Last Thursday, Lieut. Cary Middlecoff, Memphis amateur, won the north and south open at Pinehurst.

Stranahan shot a 71 in the third round in the morning to tie with Ed. Oliver, Wilmington, Del., pro for the 54-hole lead. Then in the final round, the 23-year-old Ohioan fired an even par 70 to win as Oliver's best was a 71.

Oliver received top prize money of $1,000, while Stranahan was awarded a $50 war bond.

Ben Hogan, Hershey, Pa., with a 69-71 yesterday, finished third with 279 and won $700. In fourth place was Honey Penna, Dayton, O., with 71-71 for 281.

Suggests Reason Southworth Switched to Boston Braves

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(BUP)—Early last week the baseball world was electrified by the news that likeable Billy Southworth was leaving the Saint Louis Cards to take a managerial post with the lowly Boston Braves.

Startling and unexpected as the news was, the full meaning has not yet reached the baseball domain.

Billy, who has led the redbirds to three pennants and two world championships in the past five years, had another flag winner in 1946 had he stuck with the redbirds. The Cards have a host of fielders, hitters and pitchers returning from the war and are hot favorites to replace the Chicago Cubs as the number one National League team next season.

WHY HE GAVE up such an attractive post to go with the Braves may remain a mystery to Card fans.

But it's a good guess that Billy has his personal reason for leaving a potential pennant winner to go with a second division club.

Not long ago Southworth lost the one thing dearer than baseball—for his son, Billy Southworth, Junior, who was killed in a plane crash.

Southworth wants to stay in baseball—it's the one game he knows and loves. With young Billy gone he wants a tough job, one that will keep him busy and help him to forget.

In going to Boston, he's picked the graveyard of big league managers—a place that will challenge his fighting spirit and keep him on his toes all the time.

NO ONE EVER WILL accuse Billy Southworth of not having the pluck and courage to keep going. He proved that in 1942 when his redbirds came roaring down the stretch to edge out the Brooklyn Dodgers for the National League pennant.

Winning that pennant brought Southworth and his Cards against the most feared baseball team in the country—the New York Yankees.

Even the most ardent Saint Louis rooter didn't concede the Cards a chance in that 1942 world series. The Yanks had too much power at the plate—DiMaggio Cullenbine, Keller, Hassett, Gordon, Dickey—names of men feared by American and National League pitchers alike.

The Cardinal cause looked even more hopeless when they lost the first game to their own specialty—pitching. For seven-and-two-thirds innings Red Ruffing hurled brilliant, no-hit ball against the Red-Birds. Finally he was blasted from the mound but not before he received credit for a 7 to 4 victory.

SOUTHWORTH and his boys—stung by that opening defeat and taunted by baseball writers as a high school team against the mighty Yankees—played like champions from there on in. Their pitchers clicked, their base runners ran with reckless daring and their outfield of Musial, Moore and Slaughter played rings around the Yankee flychasers.

Young Johnny Beazley got the Cards back on even footing by outpitching Ernie Bonham to win the second game, 4 to 3. Two days later Ernie White blanked the New Yorkers 2-0 on six hits and the rout was on.

Playing in their own back yard, the Yankees were outslugged 9 to 6 in the fourth contest, and suddenly Billy Southworth and his underdog Saint Louis Cards were just one game away from the 1942 world series championship.

EVEN THEN it seemed to New York f ans that the Cards were trying the impossible. The Yanks had ruled the last eight world series in which they had participated. Somehow—they'd win this one.

The fifth and decisive game was the most thrilling of the series. The Yanks started Ruffing, the only pitcher to beat the Cards, Southworth retaliated with young Johnny Beazley who had weathered some murderous Yankee hitting to win the second game.

Starting Beazley was strictly a gamble on Southworth's part. The youngster had been touched for three runs in the ninth inning of that second game. Many Card fans thought a more seasoned veteran should have started against Ruffing.

BUT SOUTHWORTH started young Johnny, and the Yanks promptly tagged him for a run in the first inning. Both teams picked up a run in the fourth as the Yankees clung desperately to their slim lead.

In the sixth, Saint Louis tied it up on two singles and Walker Cooper's fly to Roy Cullenbine.

That tied the score at two-all and left the game riding on the final three innings.

Ruffing got the cards in order in the seventh but Beazley duplicated his feat. In the eighth, Ruffing gave up a hit but no runs—the Yanks went down one-two-three.

WITH JAM PACKED Yankee Stadium tense, the Cards went out to do or die for Southworth in the ninth. Cooper started it off with a single and took second on Hopp's sacrifice. And then third baseman Whitey Kurowsky, who hadn't got a hit all day and who had just three hits for the entire series, rifled one of Ruffing's fast balls into the left field stands, and the Cards were out in front 4-2.

And that's the way the game and series ended. The Yanks got runners on first and second with none away, but Beazley pitched brilliantly to weather the threat.

Billy Southworth had won his first world series in one of the most startling upsets in baseball history!

Stukus Winds Up On Top In Race for Scoring Crown

TORONTO, Nov. 13—(CP)—Big Annis Stukus, whose punting and placement kicking were largely responsible for Toronto Indians finishing their Ontario Rugby Football Union schedule in first place, last night wore the mantle of eastern Canadian individual scoring champion.

A Canadian Press compilation after week-end games showed Annis, with all regular league play finished, in front of scorers in all three senior leagues with 42 points. Without one touchdown included, his total was made up of eight field goals, as many singles, and 10 converts.

Stukus kicked two singles and two converts as Indians defeated Balmy Beach Saturday to pass Royal Copeland, whose Toronto Argonauts finished their interprovincial schedule two weeks previously. Copeland, leading his league with 40 points, actually had a better per-game average as Argos played only six league matches compared to Indians' eight.

George Fraser of Ottawa Rough Riders and Tommy Ford of Balmy Beach, each with 30 points, took second place in the big four and the ORFU respectively.

In the Intercollegiate circuit, University of Toronto's Stew Scott and Herb Ballantyne of University of Western Ontario shared the lead. Each collected 16 points in four-game schedules.

Transfer Granted To Hergesheimer; Coleman's Denied

WINNIPEG, Nov. 13.—(CP)—Transfer of Walter Hergesheimer, star forward of the Winnipeg Ranger Junior Hockey Club to Brandon Elks, was granted Sunday at an executive meeting of the Manitoba Amateur Hockey Association. A similar application from Arni Coleman, Hergesheimer's team-mate, was turned down.

The two players appeared personally before the executive and said they had been assured of steady employment in Brandon. They indicated they had no intention of playing for Rangers even if their applications were rejected.

A third member of the Ranger first string line, Vernon Smith, was given permission to play for Brandon. The executive ruled in his favor as he is on industrial leave.

Brown, Leswick Tied for Lead

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Indianapolis Capitals' Brown-Leswick-Bukovitch combination, dominating the American Hockey League scoring race, had to make room Monday for a showing newcomer from Pittsburgh Hornets, Bob Walton.

Jerry Brown and Pete Leswick, as was the case a week ago, remained in a tie for first place with 20 points each. Walton, by adding four points to his total while his three Indianapolis rivals were adding only two each, pulled into a third-place tie with Tony Bukovitch. Each has 18 points.

City Resident Learns How Kin Slain by Nazis

Killed without reason by the Germans, was the fate of a Ukrainian mother and her son, as described in a letter received here by Alex Zima, 9631 101 avenue from his sister living in the Ukraine. The two killed were Mr. Zima's mother and his brother.

The sister in her letter related the cruel incident as follows: "Mother, Peter and I went to the town of Rowne to do our shopping, travelling in the farm wagon. After we finished our shopping I was supposed to meet them on the outskirts of town but was delayed, and missed them and so proceeded down the road toward home myself.

"ABOUT ONE MILE out of town I was confronted with a most horrible scene that I still find hard to believe, for there lying at the side of the road was mother and Peter, their bodies riddled with bullets. In the wagon were two boys in the same condition, the boys were neighbors of ours. The horses were dead also.

"From witnesses I was found out that a German automobile had come along behind the wagon. One of the Germans hollered, 'halt,' but before the team could even be stopped, the Nazis opened fire with a machine gun killing the occupants of the wagon, without evidently any reason whatsoever."

THIS INCIDENT happened on July 12, 1943, at a time when Rowne was nearly 500 miles behind the front lines.

A postscript written on the letter read as follows: "Just today I learned that our brother, Wasiliey, was killed too, leaving his wife and two small sons aged four and one."

Mr. Zima has also had one nephew killed by the Germans for trying to evade being taken to Germany and used as a slave laborer.

His father died from causes unknown to Mr. Zima during the German occupation.

Oil Companies To Make Search For New Reserves

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—(AP)—William B. Boyd, Jr., president of the American Petroleum Institute, said yesterday the industry was prepared to inaugurate an intensive search for new oil reserves.

"Although the oil industry is not fearful of using up present reserves," Mr. Boyd told a press conference at the Institute's 25th annual meeting, "the industry will continue to seek out new sources so long as there is a doubt as to the adequacy of existing reserves."

Tonsil trouble is no respecter of persons, and men, women and children are frequent victims. However, the largest number of cases is seen in adolescents and in young adults and often this may be attributed to the careless habits of eating and living at that particular time of life, when parental supervision is diminished, or lacking entirely. Ordinary acute tonsillitis usually comes on rather suddenly, with chilliness of chills, sore throat and general lassitude and a feeling of aching all over. The temperature rises rapidly and there is increased pain, which is aggravated when the patient attempts to swallow. In some cases where both tonsils are badly infected and extremely enlarged the victim is unable to swallow any food, even liquids. These subjective symptoms may be entirely absent in children and the only evidence of the tonsil trouble may be a high temperature, and in fact I have seen such cases where there was no complaint of a sore throat.

Chronic tonsillitis is usually a sequel to an acute attack and there may be crypts or pockets in the tonsillar mass, which will, upon pressure with an applicator, exude a whitish substance which has a foul odor, and is often the cause of bad breath. When the one suffering from chronic tonsillitis is subjected to a chill he may have a flareup, causing what he thinks is an acute attack of tonsillitis, but which in reality is an aggravation of the original acute attack. Those with the chronic condition require little encouragement in order to have a flareup, and this may be brought about by such a simple procedure as walking barefoot across a cold floor or on the tiles in the bath room.

There are several other conditions which may simulate tonsillitis and the examining physician has to rule out diphtheria, Vincent's angina and other infections. This may be done by making a microscopic examination of the smear obtained from the site of the infection. There have been many theories as to the cause of tonsil trouble, and I find that very often the seat of the trouble lies not in the tonsil but in some other part of the body. Quite often the infection will clear up very quickly when the patient changes to a proper dietary and attends to the general elimination of toxic wastes from the body. Surgery is indicated in some cases, especially where the tonsil has been so riddled with frequent infection that it has lost its ability to perform when it becomes a liability rather than an asset.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large stamped, self addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1153 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

DATING IS DIFFERENT IN CHINA—BUT NOT TOO MUCH SO—In China, when you take your "date" out in the evening, you don't go for a ride out into the country in a cozy coupe. You ride in separate litters, with conversation pitched above grunts of coolies and the slap-slap of their sandaled feet. Couple above are Palmer Hoyt III, UP correspondent in Chungking, and Barbara Stephens of Arlington, Va., assistant finance officer at the US Information Service there.

Eating a duck dinner at Chungking's Carlton Hotel proves quite a task, so Palmer holds the bird as Barbara rips off the meat.

City Dentists Honor Official At Local Meet

Honorary life membership in the Edmonton Dental Society was conferred Monday on Dr. R. A. Rooney, registrar, Alberta Dental Association and immediate past president, Canadian Dental Association, at a banquet in the Macdonald hotel attended by more than 70 members of the dental profession, both local and from other cities of the Dominion.

AN ILLUSTRATED address, executed by R. B. MacKenzie, 10944 89 avenue, was presented to Dr. Rooney by Dr. Robert Decker who on behalf of the society paid high tribute to the registrar for his untiring services in the interests of dentistry not only in Edmonton but all through Canada.

He referred also to outstanding work achieved by Dr. Rooney on the council of the Alberta Fish and Game League.

Dr. Rooney also received the past president's badge from the Canadian Dental Association. This recognition was conferred by the association's president, Dr. Harvey Reid, Toronto.

AMONG MANY expressions of appreciation and congratulation were those voiced by Dr. R. R. McIntyre, Calgary; Dr. H. Baden-Powell, president, Calgary Dental Society; Dr. William Keith, president, Alberta Dental Association; Dr. J. D. Hawkins, president, Edmonton Dental Society, and Dr. P. Kendall, secretary of the society.

Recently returned from Europe, Col. Lorne V. Janes, OBE, deputy director general of the Canadian Dental Corps (overseas), received an ovation from his colleagues, in recognition of the work of the dental corps throughout the war.

DR. HARVEY REID, Toronto, president, Canadian Dental Association, extended greetings from the national body, adding its appreciation of the work performed during the years by Dr. Rooney.

Dr. Reid, as one of the principal guest speakers, dealt with a number of problems associated with the dental profession and reminded his audience that enrolment in the dental schools was the largest registration in its history, and that nearly all of them were operating classes at full capacity, with the prospect of an increase within the next year.

THERE WERE FEW students on Tuesday, from the Canadian Dental Corps taking finishing courses, but there was a considerable number from the RCAF. In addition were those applying from high school to university.

He counselled his colleagues to be patient in matters affecting the profession, and stated that in the field of research would be found the greatest need for dental personnel. The national association had grown rapidly in the last few years and was now enjoying greater attention in its dealings with the government. He recommended all members to join their efforts to the task of building a sound foundation for the dental profession in Canada.

DR. DONALD GULLETT, Toronto, secretary, Canadian Dental Association, was the second guest speaker at the banquet meeting. He predicted that the future of dentistry would gradually change from the clinical to greater emphasis on the biological in practice. Efforts should be directed toward prevention of dental pathology, and this should begin with the young child and continue with regular examinations. In this regard a start had been made in school dentistry, but should be widely expanded and improved.

He said it was his considered opinion that the day was coming when the dental profession in Canada, as it now existed in England, would have to provide a comprehensive service for the people on an ever-increasing scale. This service would be built principally on the practice of maintaining dental health, and the child would be the focal point of raising the standard of sounder health of the teeth, and resultingly of better general health of the nation.

DR. W. S. HAMILTON recommended that dental operators with two or more chairs do everything in their power to assist in the re-establishment of veterans now being discharged from the Dental Corps. It would greatly assist these men in the meantime if they would make any extra practising space available to them.

Numerous telegrams of congratulation to Dr. Rooney were read to the meeting by Dr. Kendall, secretary of the Edmonton Dental Society.

THE present wave of industrial discontent and unrest which is marked by the series of strikes which have swept through the industrial centres of this continent and the British Isles has gripped the imaginations of every thinking Canadian. Many people have started already to express opinions on the subject. It is important for the future welfare of this country and the satisfactory settling of the disputes that the opinions held and expressed by the onlooking public should be based on a knowledge of the facts, and not merely on prejudiced ignorance.

IN THE FIRST PLACE it should be remembered that the industrial revolution is not over—it is merely entering its final stages. These strikes are the visible and obvious last battles of that revolution. They are not merely the result of the desire of the workers to receive higher pay, or the desire of the factory managements to pay lower wages. They are the result of the conflict between two of the most powerful rule-makers in modern life—business and the labor union.

* * *

THERE ARE MANY rule-makers and law givers in our world besides the government, as we know it.

City Liberals Firmly Oppose Co-Operation

Edmonton delegates to the meeting of the council of the Alberta Liberal Association to be held in Red Deer Nov. 28 were instructed to take a firm stand against any proposals that the party continue a policy of co-operation with other political groups at a meeting held in the 103 street Odd Fellows' Hall on Monday night.

Delegates selected were: E. C. Fisher, James Morrison, W. A. de Graves, Bruce Mansie and H. Grant, K.C. with Neil Primrose, Peter Glassman and Lin H. Bell as alternates.

MORE THAN FORTY Edmonton Liberals at the meeting heard discussion on the past and the future of the party as a provincial political power. The Independent party was blamed as the primary cause of the party's downfall and E. C. Fisher pointed out that in linking up with reactionary groups the party had lost thousands of supporters who if offered a positive and a Liberal policy, would return to the Liberal ranks.

The same speaker stressed that delegates to the Red Deer meeting must be prepared to urge that the Alberta Liberals reorganize on a provincial basis, and that a survey of Alberta needs be made on behalf of the party. Any program offering proper Liberal solutions to the province's difficulties would meet with the people's support.

JAMES MORRISON stressed that to hasty action in the calling of a convention and selection of a leader might lead to unpleasant results for the party and pointed to examples in which he claimed the results were "cut and dried" before the meetings were held. The same thing was taking place again, he charged, but he would not be more specific in his statements.

The meeting came to the unanimous decision on a motion that the party should in future stand on its own feet, and that any offers for groups should not be considered.

UP UNTIL THE CONVENTION in 1937 the Alberta provincial Liberal party and the Alberta Federal Liberal party had separate organizations, but at that time it was decided that the two groups should amalgamate to become the Alberta Liberal Association.

A return to the previous set-up was urged by most of those at the meeting since it was felt that the amalgamation of the two groups had not worked well. Lin Bell of Calder stressed the point that in most provinces the groups were separate, particularly in those provinces where the party had recently triumphed. He urged that Alberta should follow the same tactics.

E. C. Fisher, Ald. C. E. Gariepy, KC, and others supported the separation of the groups into different political entities.

THE VENUE of the convention, which can not be held for some time after the meeting at Red Deer, will be Edmonton if delegates selected Monday night attain one of the objectives set out for them by the local meeting.

The convention can not be held until such time as the province is organized and C. H. Grant, K.C., who occupied the chair, pointed out that any organizer or president to be selected at the Red Deer gathering will not be able to travel over much of the province in the winter time.

Local delegates will report to a general meeting of Liberals to be called in the Odd Fellows Hall Monday night, Dec. 10.

R. H. HARRISON told the meeting that the criterion of the amount of life in a party was the number of young people who made it up and urged that every effort be made to bring more returned service men and more young people into the party's ranks.

The large Liberal vote among the service men indicated that many of them would align themselves with the Liberals on their return to civilian life, he pointed out, claiming they should be welcomed into the ranks of the party.

Future Use of Air Base Studied

Future use of the $10,000,000 Namao air base, constructed by the USAAF in 1942-43, is probably one of the matters under discussion in a joint conference of American and Canadian military and air force officials that opened at Ottawa Monday.

* * *

Operations at the Namao air base have come practically to a standstill in recent weeks. The base had been used primarily for ferrying of military aircraft to Russia by way of the Northwest Staging Route and Alaska under the lease-lend agreement.

ATTENDING THE conference, which is for the purpose of arranging final details for transfer of the Alaska Military Highway and Northwest Staging route airports to Canadian control next spring and summer are:

Air Vice-Marshal T. A. Lawrence, commanding the Northwest Air Command, RCAF; Brig.-Gen. Dale F. Gaffney, commanding general USAAF, Air Transport Command, Alaskan Division; Wing Cmdr. L. H. Phinney, special Canadian Commissioner Northwest Defence Projects and Lt.-Col. F. C. Hanington, aide to Wing Cmdr. Phinney.

ACCORDING TO a recent Ottawa announcement the Alaska Highway on Canadian soil, will be operated by the Canadian Army after April 1 next, with the air route being completely operated by the RCAF by June 1.

It is expected the Ottawa conference will last several days.

Woman Loses $3,000 In Traffic Accident

Officials at the Royal Alexandra hospital late Monday told police that Mrs. Makeniuk had stated her purse, containing the money, proceeds of the sale of her house earlier in the day, was lost either during the accident or immediately preceding it. The injured woman had intended to bank the money Monday.

Traffic constables who investigated the accident are reported to have found a purse containing $5 in the vicinity of the crash.

THE QUESTION

What do you think of the suggestion that provisions of the Veterans' Land Act be extended to include the construction of houses on ordinary city lots within city limits?

THE ANSWERS

JOSEPH R. WARREN, returned man, houseseeker: There just doesn't seem to be much help available for a fellow who has a job in the city, but no place to live so that he can have his family near to him. I think it would be a good idea if we fellows in town got a break like that.

TOM FIELDING, barber: It would be okay, if it didn't mean building a lot of houses which might not be needed in a few years and if the veterans can be supplied with decent building materials for their new homes.

ART COUSINEAU, carpenter: I would agree to the suggestion and would add to it another that returned men who are carpenters be employed in building the new homes so far as possible.

Woman Is Injured When Hit by Car

A woman identified as Eliza Bezarlie, about 55 years old, a resident of South Edmonton, was being treated at the Misericordia hospital Tuesday morning for injuries received when she was struck by a car shortly after 8 a.m., according to the city police traffic squad.

The woman was said to have been struck by a car driven by Wilbur F. Sampson, suite 29 Arlington Apartments. Police said Sampson was driving north on 96 street and at the intersection of 103 avenue he swerved to avoid hitting another car.

The Sampson automobile then skidded into the northeast corner of the intersection, striking the woman as she left the curb to cross the street towards the west.

She was taken to hospital by Mr. Sampson.

Dr. Atkinson practiced his profession in this city for 33 years, for all that time a member of the staff of the Royal Alexandra hospital. Just before he left, the hospital staff sent him a letter of appreciation for his services with good wishes for his future.

Plan Presentation Of Purple Heart

The American Order of the Purple Heart will be awarded to Mrs. Margaret Amboe at 4:30 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 15, at the American air base here, according to an announcement made recently by Robert B. Streeper, American consul.

Mrs. Amboe's son, Pte. Erney Amboe, was killed while serving with the American forces in the bitter fighting in the South Pacific area and following the American custom of presenting the award to next-of-kin, Brig.Gen. Dale V. Gaffney is expected to give Mrs. Amboe this award.

The general is now in Ottawa at a conference and should he not have returned in time for the ceremony, the officer commanding the local air base in his absence will make the presentation.

Supply of Liquor Adequate For Yule

Apprehensive miners along the coal branch who have been ordering their liquor supplies by mail from the Edson liquor store, and who have been warned by mail-order liquor stores on the envelopes returning their permits to them that there would be none in December were reassured that Christmas supplies would be available by J. A. King, chairman of the liquor control board, in a statement issued today.

Control board officials are at a loss to explain the origin of the notes which are penciled in red on the envelopes and which say "no mail orders in December."

No changes in the mail order system set up by the control board is contemplated, Mr. King said, and every effort is being made to locate the person writing the notes.

Strong Opposition

Beauty Parlor Trade Members In Sharp Clashes Over Code

Heated exchanges over the proposed provincial code now under consideration for the regulating of beauty parlor operations Monday featured two meetings of organized members of the trade, and which found them taking sides on its controversial issues.

REJECTION OF THE CODE'S present proposed regulations was expressed by 35 members of the Edmonton branch of the Alberta Beautician' Association, held in Slabey's Beauty Shop. Opposing this was approval of the code and its regulations by 50 persons in attendance at the Alberta Hairdressers' Association meeting, held in the Queen's hotel under auspices of the Edmonton branch.

AT THE BEAUTICIANS' meeting a resolution was adopted expressing unanimous opposition to the code in its entirety. Peter Phillips, president, was chairman. It was stated the resolution was arrived at following thorough discussion. In the discussion on regulations for the trade, the meeting favored their framing under the Tradesmen's Qualification Act, and a committee was appointed to review the present draft with the view of making recommendations to the provincial government on changes considered essential.

To discuss the general situation and plan further action members decided they would hold another meeting in the near future.

VERBAL FIREWORKS featured a clash between Harry Cross and J. L. Barnes, president of the Edmonton branch, Alberta Hairdressers' Association, when Mr. Cross questioned some of the code's regulations.

Predicting that it would effect considerable expense to the hairdressers if the plan were put into effect, Mr. Cross said "Why not deal with the regulations?" He added, "there will be a lot of registrations if you adopt a code."

Mr. Cross said he resented remarks from the meeting to the effect that he did not know what he was talking about, and complained with: "It looks as if anyone can sit on an appeal board," when this subject was being read to the meeting. That is a matter of interest to from 1,500 to 1,800 hairdressers in this province."

"YOU ARE TRYING to make a donkey out of me," charged Mr. Barnes in complaint at Mr. Cross' criticisms. Mr. Cross replied he had no such intention.

Norris Pacey said certain fees set out in the regulations were for new members of the trade and students.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Business Girl Can Be Good or Bad Mate

A Young Man Who Is Contemplating Matrimony Asks "Which Makes the Better Wife, the Domestic Girl, or the Business Girl?"

A young man who is contemplating matrimony asks: "Which makes the better wife, the domestic girl, or the business girl?"

Well, in these days, when practically every girl goes from the schoolroom into a store or office, there isn't much profit in discussing the qualifications for wifehood of the domestic girl because the species is almost as extinct as the Dodo. She has become a museum specimen, instead of parlor furniture. So the question narrows down to considering whether a business experience fits or unfits a girl for marriage.

Curiously enough, it does both, for how a girl reacts to marriage depends upon her temperament. There are girls who are born with a yearning for pots and pans and cooking stoves and babies, and to whom everything connected with the commercial world is anathema. They are never happy until they get into their own kitchens, and they get more kick out of beating up an angel food cake than they would out of selling a million dollar bill of goods.

But there are other girls who love the rustle and rush and sense of accomplishment of business, who are far more at home in an office than they will ever be in a vine-wreathed cottage, and who are more married to their jobs than they ever will be to any man. And these are the girls who develop into "our invaluable Miss Jones" of whom their employers boast, but they never make the Mrs. Jones of whom their husbands brag.

Theoretically a business training should be good wife training. It would seem that a girl who had been drilled into punching the time clock at the store on the dot would run her house on a schedule; that the one who had earned her own living would know how much blood and sweat and weariness goes into every dollar and would handle her money carefully; that the one who had learned how to appease a cranky employer would know how to yes-yes her husband. And perhaps even the Dumbest Dora does learn something from her business experience that improves her technique as a wife.

BUT ON the other side of the ledger stands out the bald fact that the girl who has once held down a good job, and liked it, is bored to tears at running a little two by four apartment. The woman who had been the buyer for a big department store once said to me: "When I go out to buy a couple of pounds of steak and 10 cents' worth of carrots, when I am accustomed to buying by the many thousands of dollars, it is like putting a high-powered Deisel engine to doing a quarter of a horsepower job."

Nor does any woman who has ever known the self-respect and dignity that having her own money gives her ever take kindly to asking her husband for every cent and explaining what she did with the last quarter he gave her. Neither does the ex-business woman make the sort of a wife who takes backtalk from her husband and puts up with any sort of treatment he sees fit to give her. She can put on her hat and walk out on him if he doesn't treat her as politely as he does his secretary.

SO THERE YOU are, son. If you want a wife who will be a good business partner who will help you make and save your money, who won't make you go out at night to parties because she knows from experience how your feet hurt, a business girl is a good bet. But if you want a wife you can knock about and who will take it because you are her only meal ticket, pass up the business girl. The Patient Griselda wives haven't got a good business training to fall back upon.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Points for Parents

By EDYTH THOMAS WALLACE

Father: "There is a difference between Hallowe'en fun and pranks which damage other people's property. I'm sorry I didn't have sense enough to understand this when I was your age."

Son: "Did you really do all the things on Hallowe'en that Uncle Jim told about?"
Father: "Of course not. Uncle Jim was just stuffing you. Don't you go trying any of them."

Better to acknowledge a mistake and hope children will not imitate it than to deny it and have them imitate both the deed and the denial.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

THE EXPERIENCE a child has when she misappropriates what does not belong to her is the very influence which should prevent repetition of such behavior. To that end, I do not believe in minimizing parental disapproval. The attitude the parent expresses and whatever the child must do to show her repentance, impress the child with the measure of her "sin" and society's emotion toward it.

Mrs. J. V. writes, "My little 8-year-old girl has always been very easy to handle. She is reasonable in her desire and they have always been granted. She has had her own money since she was four. She has made purchases for two years and knows the value of money. I w[illegible] bedfast for a while when she was six and sent her often to my purse. Since then the family money has been a common possession, probably a mistake.

"I FEEL SURE it was no desire for the money when she took a penny from a visiting teacher's pocket. She bumped the pocket, heard a jingle, found several pennies and took one.

"Since the teacher could not be contacted I said we should take it to the regular teacher and restore it. She agreed to do this if I would go along. But since then the child's manner has been hard toward me. The teacher was perfect and was sure the child would never do this again.

"Would it have been better had I assumed the confession was punishment enough and mailed the penny back? Above all will she come to me again when she does something wrong.

YOU HANDLED this incident rightly. The child should feel humiliated and saving her from it would not impress her so greatly with the measure of her misconduct. But from now on you must forget it and expect that she will, too. But she should have her own pocketbook and her own weekly allowance.

My one and only experience with this was when my own son was about eight. When I found him in possession of an extra-ordinary amount of rubber bands I investigated and then made him go back to the store from which he had filched them, return the bands and apologize. I called to be sure that he had reached there. He says now that he never has the slightest desire to repeat the unhappy experience.

IT DOESN'T PAY to be soft, for this is a serious offense and the child can't learn it too early in life.

Our leaflet "Why Do Children Steal?" may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with this request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

McKenney On Bridge

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY
America's Card Authority

Offhand, I suppose one might say that New York has the best group of bridge players. However, Philadelphia can produce as many, and possibly more fine players at a tournament, than any other city. Certainly the best players from both these cities will compete in the forthcoming national tournament.

Simon (Skippy) Becker of Philadelphia made a nice bid at the Eastern Pennsylvania tournament at Reading, where he won the pair event with Joseph Davis. It is one you might bear in mind when you are competing against the Blackwood convention.

North:
♠ K Q J 10 2
♥ Q 4

Becker (West):
♠ A 9 4
♥ K 9 6 2
♦ 9 8 4

East:
♠ 8 7 5
♥ 10 8 7 5
♦ Q J 10 7 2

South (Dealer):
♥ A J 3
♦ A K 5
♣ Q J 9 7 2

Duplicate—Neither vul.

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	4 N. T.	Pass
5 ♥	Double	6 N. T.	Pass

I did not particularly like North's jump to four no trump, but that is what he did, and South correctly bid five hearts showing two aces.

Becker based his double on the inference that one of South's two aces was very likely the ace of hearts. Therefore he felt that a heart opening would help to defeat the slam contract to which North-South appeared to be headed, as he (Becker) held the ace of spades.

North's jump to six no trump was a wild stab in the dark, but Becker's reasoning was correct. With a diamond opening, six no trump was cold, but with a heart opening the hand went down.

Diogenes, who is said to have spent a large part of his life "looking for an honest man", was not himself honest and was exiled for counterfeiting. The famous painting by Castiglione was not called "Diogenes Searching for an Honest Man", but was actually titled simply, "Diogenes Searching for a Man."

THESE WOMEN—"She was his secretary, and told him she was leaving, so he topped her offer!"

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN—

Why Grow Old?

LA ROCHEFOUCAULD wrote, "There are few women whose charm survives their beauty."

This is an interesting statement for if you think it over you will find that it is too often true. Women are prone to depend on physical beauty for attractiveness. No one can argue that this is not a great asset but if we had to choose between real charm and good looks we would be short-sighted to select the latter.

JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

IF A WOMAN is understanding, warm hearted, gay, intelligent, thoughtful, and more than everything else, if she is imbued with a keen-edged love of life and people which keeps her enthusiastic, alert and eager, she is almost sure to look lovely to those who know her. At least, we never get past the impact of her magnetic personality to think about how she looks.

YET, I AM certain it is true a great many women subconsciously depend on physical attractiveness, because otherwise, why do they become self-conscious, lose the adventurous feeling of life, and become apologetic in personality, mannerisms and thinking as the years roll by? Certainly every year we live should add to our zest and understanding, should open up new potentialities for vibrant living, and should sharply highlight values so that we are better able to discard those which are not important to us and concentrate on those which are.

ADDED TO THIS thought is the fact that women today can remain youthful in appearance long after the usual age for fading. We know so much more about diet, and exercise and skin care and hair routine than we used to know. Perhaps both charm and beauty die of the same blight—neglect!

If you were not born beautiful today you can at least be extremely attractive looking if you will take the trouble, and anyway, the habit of allowing age signs to affect your personality will penalize you a thousand times more than any physical handicap you could possibly have.

IF YOU WISH, to have my leaflet No. 57, "Charm" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with this request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

U.S. Soldier, Wife Stationed in Tokyo

TOKYO, Nov. 13 — (AP) — Sgt. Russell Hannegan believes he is the only American serviceman in Japan with his wife with him. His wife, WO. Bessie Hannegan, is at the army exchange purchasing office in Tokyo and together they are waiting to return home although "we are in no rush unless we can go together".

• Authorities say the difference between husky children and those who are poor eaters, underweight and nervous is often simply a matter of proper nourishment, especially an adequate supply of vitamins.

But vitamins alone are not enough. For authorities now agree that vitamins do not work alone. They work as a team with certain other food elements.

For this reason, thousands are switching to Ovaltine. Unlike mere "vitamin carriers," Ovaltine food beverage contains not only extra vitamins but nearly all the precious food elements needed for health and top vitality. These include Vitamins A, B_1 and D, the important minerals calcium, phosphorus and iron, high quality proteins and quick energy fuel-food—a combination of food elements authorities agree are needed for best results.

So, if your child is thin, nervous and not developing properly, why not turn to Ovaltine as thousands are doing. Three normal meals plus two glasses of Ovaltine a day give your child all the extra amounts of vitamins and minerals needed for health and top vitality. 164

THE PROTECTING FOOD-DRINK

Elizabeth Woodward Says . . .

DON'T BE PRUDISH ABOUT PICKUPS

Here's a man you never saw before in your life. He's full of ideas about going places with you. You're sure it's a bum idea and you'd like to know how to retreat without slapping his face. Which to do? Well, don't slap him!

You can't keep strange men from looking at you—or speaking to you—unless you build yourself a high fence and stay behind it. Men are going to try. And you can run like a scared rabbit—or act as you do to turnips when you don't like turnips—"no thank you," with a smile.

WHEN A MAN'S a pickup, he's just out for a good time. There's not much at stake as far as his reputation goes. You're just one more girl, and he's willing to take a chance on you. Which makes his invitation not too flattering. And doesn't change the fact that his idea of a good time may not be yours.

You decide that pickups aren't for you—but you aren't sure how to brush him off. After all, you don't want to be remembered even faintly as a prudish persimmon. So you smile when you say, "thank you, I'm busy." And if he proposes meeting you on the corner tomorrow night, you really couldn't—you are going to be busy. If he's terribly persistent, be polite, but firm and busy. Then go on your merry way. A smart stranger will catch the drift. You won't have to snow him under. He'll understand. After all, he's met nice girls like you before!

IT'S PERFECTLY possible that a boy you don't know really wants to know you. And badly. He may know no other way to get acquainted than to pick you up. But a really nice guy, with the best intentions, uses a different approach. You'll spot it immediately. His conversation will be first casual, about every day things. He won't look at you with greedy eyes. He'll undoubtedly suggest he come over to see you, if you think that will be fun. He'll ask where you live and when he can stop by to meet your Dad and Mother. A smart guy knows that's the only track to take. And you wouldn't be interested unless he were!

The rest is up to you. You can still decline graciously. Or you think knowing him better might be fun. You can start the proceedings on your own ground. Once introduced to the bosom of your family, he isn't a strange pickup. He's bound by rules and regulations. And you make them!

Frederick Major Russell Marries in Gananoque

GANANOQUE, Ont., Nov. 13.—Historic old Christ church, decorated with oak leaves and bronze chrysanthemums on the chancel, and white chrysanthemums on the altar, formed the setting for the wedding of Miss Eileen Elizabeth Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Hamilton of Gananoque, Ont., and Frederick Major Russell, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Russell of Edmonton, Nov. 3, at 2 p.m. The Rev. N. B. Stout officiated. J. F. • • •

Her floor-length veil was caught to her head with a tiara of ostrich tips and she carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, carnations and bouvardia. Her only jewelry was a pearl necklace.

Miss Joyce Russell, sister of the bridegroom, was maid-of-honor and bridesmaids were the Misses Audrey Pullar, Barbara Webster and Mrs. Maurice Burns. The attendants were attired alike in floor-length gowns of Burgundy chiffon velvet, with slight trains, sweetheart necklines and long sleeves. Their headdresses were of matching material and they carried white prayer books with white baby chrysanthemums cascaded.

Arnold Hamilton was best man and ushering the guests to their seats were Clifford Hamilton, Gerald Sword and Andrew Kielty.

FOLLOWING THE ceremony a reception to 90 guests was held at the parish hall, where the bride's table was centred with a four-tiered wedding cake. Mr. Stout proposed the bridal toast.

The couple left for a honeymoon at Toronto and Niagara Falls and will later take up residence in Edmonton. For travelling the bride chose a gold and brown crepe frock, gold boucle coat with blond fox fur collar and brown accessories. A corsage of white roses completed her going-away outfit.

500 Students Attend Dance

Attendance at the University of Alberta house dance which was held Saturday night in the RCAF drill hall, was noticeably smaller than usual, owing probably to the fact that all first year students are busy with mid-term tests. The dances a weekly occurrence, usually draw from 700 to 1,000 students, whereas this week there were about 500 present.

Two campus personalities who married during the summer holidays and have not been in attendance at Varsity functions this fall, turned up however, for Saturday's dance: secretary of the Students' Union, Jock Penzer and his bride, the former Miss Mary Evelyn Rose, of Vancouver, B.C., and the campus artist, Glenn Cummins, with his bride, Lois Butcher, of MacLeod, Alta.

Faculty guests were Miss Hazel McIntire, Miss Mary Faunt, Dr. and Mrs. F. H. Boulman and Mr. and Mrs. H. Hewlton.

SAFEWAY has everything you'll need for HOLIDAY BAKING

Now is the time to do your Holiday Baking and you'll find that Safeway has the ingredients — at everyday LOW PRICES.

How to enhance your holiday baking

The stand-by recipes for holiday baking have a new taste-thrill when you add an ingredient that is different and tantalizing in flavor. An ideal pastry for mince, pumpkin and apple pie is:

ORANGE OR LEMON PASTRY

To your standard pastry recipe add 1 to 1½ tablespoons of grated orange or lemon rind with the flour and shortening mixture. (Part orange or lemon juice may be used for the liquid).

Or you might like a change from Pumpkin Pie to Sweet Potato Pie. Here is my favorite recipe.

SWEET POTATO PIE

3 eggs
1 cup sugar
1 tsp. mace
½ tsp. salt
1½ cups milk
½ cup orange juice
1 tbsp. lemon juice
2 tbsps. grated orange rind
½ cup melted butter
Unbaked pastry shell
6 tbsps. sugar

Boil potatoes in jackets, peel; mash and measure. Beat eggs, beat yolks until light, add sugar mixed with mace and salt. Combine with sweet potatoes; add milk, orange juice, lemon juice, orange rind and butter. Pour in unbaked pastry shell. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) for 15 minutes; reduce to moderate oven (350° F.) and bake 30 minutes longer. Make meringue with egg whites and 6 tbsps. sugar. Spread roughly on top of pie; return to oven; bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 15 minutes. Makes 1 9-inch pie.

LONDON STOCKS

LONDON, Nov. 13—(Reuters)—Continuing under the influence of political developments the London stock market spent another quiet session today.

British funds were dull on some offerings with the 3½ per cent. war loan ⅛ lower at £103. British railways held quietly steady.

Among foreign bonds German issues were firm on hopes of prior consideration in the matter of reparations. Japanese and Chinese issues also were slightly better.

Industrials lacked interest but kept mainly steady. There was renewed inquiry for cable and wireless issues with the ordinary touching £110 but dropping back to £109 under profit-taking. International dollar stocks were quiet.

Rye Futures Slip After Early Rise

WINNIPEG, Nov. 13—(CP)—Rye futures prices on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today gave a highly irregular performance advancing five cents, the maximum permitted for one day's trading, in early trade, and slipping off sharply in a flurry of selling in the last hour.

Values moved up for maximum gains shortly after the opening on general buying which found offerings light. The upturn was aided by similar advances in Chicago rye and other grains. Late in the session, Chicago oats developed an easier tone and the downward trend was followed by rye, extending to the Winnipeg market. Considerable selling appeared in late stages.

At the close prices were 3-3½ cents lower with Dec. $1.94b; May $1.90⅛ and July $1.81⅛.

There was no export business reported.

CREAM PRICES

Prices for cream delivered to Edmonton creameries: Special grade, 43 to 45; No. 1, 41 to 43; No. 2, 38 to 38; off grade, 31 to 33.

EGG PRICES

All prices include government bonus of 10c to farmers.

Dealers now paying to country shippers: A large, 41; A medium, 39; A pullet, 35; grade B, 33; grade C, 25.

Retail to consumers: A large, 53½; A medium, 51½; A pullet, 48-48½; grade B, 47½-49½; grade C, 39½-41.

The feature of the Edmonton egg market is a decrease in paying prices for grade A large and medium of 3c per dozen and 2c per dozen for A pullets and grade B. The Vancouver market influenced this situation somewhat.

The supply of all grades continues insufficient for demand, and the tone of the market is, therefore, reported as firm. Local retail demand continues good and values remain at ceiling levels. One carlot grade A moved to Montreal and four carlots re-graded storage stocks exported to Great Britain. Receipts of eggs through the province's registered egg stations showed a 3 per cent. decrease with the previous week. Quality improved to 82 per cent grade A compared to 72.5 per cent. for the previous week.

POULTRY PRICES

The poultry market increased in activity. Receipts of chicken gained 38 per cent. over last week and fowl 37 per cent. One carlot frozen chicken and fowl moved to Vancouver, one carlot of chicken and fowl moved to Prince Edward Island and one carlot of straight chicken moved to Montreal. Quality of receipts show improvement, but still better finish needed on chicken.

Paying prices remain firm and unchanged from last week. Local retail demand is reported excellent for chicken and good for fowl.

Meat Shipments to Britain Now at All Time High Mark

Commenting on reports that British dock strikes have interfered with Canadian meat shipments, the Meat Board announced on Oct. 31 that meat shipments are now at an all-time high and that it has ample refrigerator ocean space booked to handle all meats now available for shipment.

THE MEAT BOARD is shipping so much meat overseas that plain figures fail to convey the size of its operations. The 110,000,000 pounds of meat which the board has cleared or booked for clearance overseas since Oct. 1 would fill a freight train stretching halfway from Toronto to Hamilton, Ont., or halfway from Saint John to Fredericton, N.B., or all the way from Calgary west to the foothills of the Rockies.

Of this unprecedented quantity of meat exports, some 60,000,000 pounds were carried overseas by 15 steamers clearing Canadian ports in October. These October shipments include 28,000,000 pounds of bacon and 28,000,000 pounds of beef.

HON. JAMES G. Gardiner, Dominion Minister of Agriculture, has announced that under the provisions of the Prairie Farm Assistance Act the 1945 crop year has been declared an emergency year under section 3 of the act. The minister stated that order 3,000 townships in the eastern half of the province of Alberta and the western half of the province of Saskatchewan have suffered this year from the severest drought conditions experienced in the prairie provinces since 1937.

Without the benefit of this declaration thousands of farmers in this area would otherwise be unable to carry on until the next crop was harvested, said Mr. Gardiner.

THE PURPOSE of the act, which makes this possible, is to provide aid to prairie farmers whose crops have been reduced by means beyond their control. Assistance payments under the act come from a fund to which each farmer contributes one per cent of the amount he receives on grain sales each year. These farmer contributions to date have constituted over one-third of the assistance payments which have been made since the act came into force in 1939, the balance of the amount being provided by funds from the treasury of Canada.

ASSISTANCE PAYMENTS are allotted to farmers on the basis of the average yield in the respective townships.

Since the act was passed in 1939, the only crop year not declared an emergency year was that of 1942-43.

TO THE END of the 1944 crop year, expenditures under the act since 1939 have totalled $43,741,382.33, of which $17,215,339.57 has been made from the funds built up by the one per cent levy on all prairie farmers' sales of grain and the balance of $26,526,042.76 by contributions from the treasury of Canada.

* * *

AS A PROTECTION to the buyer and seller of live stock, certain requirements are made with respect to trading in stockyards and public markets in Canada. Sales agencies and dealers must be bonded and must place funds received from the sale of live stock in a Shippers' Trust Account. All records must be bona fide and open for inspecton. Schedules of commissions and charges are subject to official approval, as are also scales and weighmasters.

* * *

STOCKYARD proprietors are required to provide adequate accommodation and services, as well as good feed at fair prices. An official representative of the Dominion department of agriculture is located at each of the 11 stockyards in Canada to administer the regulations and prepare regular market reports. Certain controls are also exercised over packers' yards in the case of live stock purchased by the packer direct from the country.

MILK PRODUCTION in Canada in 1945, based on present trends, is expected to be about 100 million pounds more than the 17,600 million pounds produced in 1944, states the Current Review of Agricultural Conditions in Canada. Late summer reports indicated that the overall production would be even higher but a cold wet September in most parts of Canada caused a slight dropping off in milk production. While there have been favorable growing and pasture conditions in most of the dairy areas in Canada this year, the increase in milk production has been confined to eastern Canada and British Columbia where milk production has more than offset the decrease in the three prairie provinces.

TWO CONTROLS on farm labor are to be abolished after the 1945 crop is harvested, probably on Nov. 15. These controls are the provision that men in agriculture are not allowed to leave their employment, and the power to direct men to agriculture.

This action eliminates every control except (a) Requirement that a permit be obtained before accepting employment; (b) Requirement to give seven days' notice on terminating employment; (c) Requirement that employers must list vacancies and that those seeking work shall register; and (d) Requirement of a labor exit permit.

Parents of Two VC Winners Live At Nelson, B.C.

OTTAWA, Nov. 13—(CP)—Both Canadian naval men to win the Victoria Cross in the Second Great War had parents living in a British Columbia town bearing the name of Britain's greatest sailor—Nelson.

From that town of 6,000 in the Kootenay valley came 28-year-old Lieut. Robert Hampton Gray to win the VC by sinking a Japanese destroyer six days before the end of the war. He was killed in action.

The mother of the other VC lives in Nelson. He was Capt. T. F. Peters, a native of Prince Edward Island, who won the supreme award for forcing the boom at Oran during the North African landings of November, 1942. He was serving with the Royal Navy, and died later.

Before the Magistrate

John J. Belliveau and his brother, Lucien, both residents of Ottawa, Ont., charged with vagrancy, asked Magistrate A. I. Millar, KC, in city police court Monday for a chance to get themselves jobs on a farm near Wainwright. The plea was rejected and they were both sentenced to three months hard labor. RCMP said they had been arrested at Fort Saskatchewan.

GEORGE McPHERSON was sentenced to 30 days hard labor for theft of a woman's overcoat Saturday. James Burton was fined $30 and costs or 30 days for a breach of the Coal Mine regulations.

Arthur Purcell was fined $100 and costs or three months when he pleaded guilty to keeping a disorderly house.

TO THIS, MR. CROSS replied: "Girls could be prevented from getting work under these regulations." He demanded to know the reason for "secrecy," and stated responsibility for this rested upon a selected few. "I am certain not 50 per cent of those here knew what was being done," he said.

Observing there was another hairdressers' organization in the city, W. Coughlin asked why all were not united.

"We hope they will be," Mr. Barnes replied. Shortly after this Mr. Cross departed from the meeting.

"WE HAVE BEEN TRYING for 10 years to get the trade organized," said Mr. Barnes, who stated the meeting was called for the purpose of studying the proposed code and regulations currently in the hands of the minister of trade and industry.

He drew the meeting's attention to a petition which was circulated last spring appealing to the government to include hairdressers under the Tradesmen's Qualification Act. Ninety-six per cent of hairdressers in Edmonton and 80 per cent in the province had signed the petition asking for the code and regulations, he reminded the meeting.

THE PETITION had been responsible for formation of the Alberta Hairdressers' Association which was recognized by the provincial government and which possessed powers to recommend alterations in regulations.

"The changes will come from meetings such as this," said Mr. Barnes.

A provincial convention will be held early in the spring at which branches of the association from Calgary, Medicine Hat and Lethbridge would be in attendance, Mr. Barnes told the meeting.

"A SMALL GROUP of shops has lined up against us," said Mr. Barnes, "and ambiguous statements are being made in the press—these are misleading to the public."

"We are not going to raise prices—in fact we are not allowed to raise prices under Wartime Prices and Trade Board regulations. Most of us are satisfied with the prices we are getting anyway," Mr. Barnes stated.

The meeting did not raise the question of price alterations that might be considered when WPTB regulations were discontinued.

SPEAKING WITH APPROVAL for regulations within the trade, Mr. Barnes said any person could open a beauty parlor now by paying the $5 city license fee. In this way they could open a shop, cut prices and continue to operate even if "they did not know a hair waving machine from a milking machine."

On the question of prohibiting price advertising, Mr. Coughlin said his opinion was that such advertising was a stimulus to the beauty parlor business in general. "If the women stay at home the beauty parlors never would get any money," he commented.

Mr. Pacey wanted to know whether such advertising should specify whether the work was being done by apprentices.

* * *

"I BELIEVE TRADE schools are not permitted to advertise prices outside the schools. This association should see the practice is stopped," remarked one feminine member of the meeting.

There were regulations governing trade schools, Mr. Barnes said, and inquiries could be made to see if they were being enforced.

Deny Mine Workers Returning to AFL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—(AP)—Officials of the independent United Mineworkers Union last night denied a CIO report that President John L. Lewis had taken the union back into the American Federation of Labor.

William Green, president of the AFL, also denied a published hint that a secret agreement had been reached with Mr. Lewis and a substantial amount of dues paid the AFL. Mr. Green called the report "bunk."

* * *

HOWEVER, Richard T. Frankensteen, vice-president of the CIO United Automobile Workers, said the CIO understood "on very good information" that Mr. Lewis had amalgamated his union with the organization with which he split several years ago.

Six of Canada's 13 VC Winners Come From B.C.

OTTAWA, Nov. 13.—(CP)—Of Canada's 13 Victoria Cross winners of the Second Great War, six have come from British Columbia.

The latest is Lieut. Robert Gray, DSC, of Nelson, B.C., awarded the VC posthumously for the sinking of a Japanese destroyer six days before the end of the war.

The others:

Lt. Col. C. C. I. Merritt, Vancouver, for leadership of the South Saskatchewan regiment at Dieppe in 1942.

CAPT. T. F. PETERS of Prince Edward Island and Nelson, B.C., member of the Royal Navy, for forcing a boom during the North Africa landings in November, 1942. He died later.

Maj. (now Lt.-Col.) Paul Triquet of Cabano, Que., for gallantry at Casa Berardi, near Ortona, Italy, in December, 1943.

Maj. Charles Ferguson Hoey, of Duncan, B.C., for bravery with British forces in the India-Burma campaign, February, 1944, in which he was killed.

• • •

FLT. LT. DAVID HORNELL, of Mimico, Ont., for a successful U-boat attack in which he was killed in June, 1944.

Maj. John Keefer Mahony of New Westminster, B.C., for gallantry in the crossing of the Melfa river in Italy, May, 1944.

Maj. (later Lt.-Col.) David Currie of Moose Jaw, Sask., for heroism in the Falaise Gap in August, 1944.

PTE. ERNEST (SMOKEY) SMITH of New Westminster, B.C., in holding a bridgehead across the Savio river in Italy, October, 1944.

Maj. Frederick Tilston of Toronto and Windsor, Ont., who lost both legs in the German Hochwald, March, 1945.

Sgt. Aubrey Cosens of Latchford, Ont., killed in the midst of the heroism in Holland, February, 1945, for which he won the VC.

CPL. FREDERICK G. TOPHAM of Toronto for his actions as a medical orderly with the 1st Canadian Parachute Battalion in the battle of the Rhine, March, 1945.

Sqdn. Ldr. I. W. Bazalgette of Calgary, a Canadian in the RAF who gave his life in trying to save two comrades in a crippled, blazing bomber in August, 1944.

New VC Winner

Tokyo and Lieut. Gray sped off the deck of the big aircraft carrier Formidable to lead an attack, Aug. 9, 1945.

SWEEPING OVER Onagawa Wan, a gulf outside Tokyo Bay, he sighted a number of Japanese warships and immediately started an attack.

A terrific fire was returned by warships and ground batteries. Lieut. Gray weaved his way through the deadly barrage which was concentrated on his light aircraft.

The plane was hit again and again, but he had sighted a destroyer and was not to be turned away from the target. As he made his run, Japanese warship his aircraft burst into flames but he managed to keep it airborne until he was within 50 feet of the ship.

THEN HE RELEASED his bomb load with deadly precision. A great explosion followed. Lieut. Gray had found his mark and the destroyer sank almost immediately. But the little aircraft, mortally wounded, could not get away and it plowed into the sea, killing its gallant pilot.

The high courage of the Trail, B.C., native had previously won him the distinguished service cross and mention in dispatches.

All his honors came while serving with the Formidable in operations ranging from northern Norway to the Japanese home islands.

"HAMMY" GRAY was selected with 75 other University of British Columbia students in 1940 to go to Britain to train for naval commissions. After training at Halifax he was selected for the fleet air arm and went to Collins Bay, Ont., for his flying training.

After services at various battle stations he was posted to the Formidable in August, 1944, and was immediately sent against the German battleship Tirpitz, hiding in a Norwegian fjord.

A FEW WEEKS LATER he won the Bronze Oak Leaf of a mention in dispatches for strafing gun positions around Alten fjord to make way for torpedo plane attacks on the Tirpitz.

In the same action, Lieut. Gray led his attack on three Narvik class destroyers, and as on his VC-winning exploit, his plane was punctured with flak but he kept on firing.

THE DOUGHTY, fair - haired Canadian won his DSC for a series of actions against the Japanese. He strafed airfields, attacked merchant shipping and hit a destroyer and his terse citation merely said: "For determination and address in air attacks on targets in Japan."

He was reported "missing, presumed dead" Aug. 9, 1945.

Of Canada's 13 VC's, six were killed either in the heroic action or later and four won their honors serving with British forces.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Gray, Nelson, B.C., Lieut. Gray had been editor-in-chief of the UBC Year Book.

THE OFFICIAL announcement from the admiralty said:

The King has approved the award of the Victoria Cross posthumously to the late Lieut. Robert Hampton Gray, DSC, RCNVR.

DESTRUCTION OF $18,000,000 IN SUPERFORTS PROTESTED IN U.S.—President Truman and members of Congress are receiving thousands of protests about the destruction of 16 B-29 Superfortresses valued at $18,000,000. The planes were within a week of completion when the U.S. government declared the planes "surplus material." Cut in sections, the metal is crushed by a bulldozer and shipped as junk.

Victory Loan Sales in City At $10,000,000

Sales of Ninth Victory Loan in Edmonton by noon Tuesday had exceeded the $10,000,000 mark, and officials stated that this figure would be substantially increased when all returns had been completed.

AT THE CLOSE of business on Monday the sales in the city had climbed to $9,813,400 for 127.5 per cent of the $7,700,000 set for the city. This compares with $8,064,000 of sales in the eighth loan when the percentage of quota achieved was 127.

The number of subscribers to the Ninth Loan at the close of business Monday, compared with 32,510 in the last loan.

SALES IN RURAL Northern Alberta in the Ninth Victory Loan at the close of business Monday stood at $10,858,150 from 28,207 investors for 119.4 per cent of the $9,072,000 quota. This compares with $10,253,700 in the last loan when 27,568 subscribers chalked up 125.1 per cent of the lower quota set for that loan.

In Northern Alberta the total sales in this loan amounted to $20,649,550 for 123.1 per cent of the $16,772,000 quota set for the territory. This compared with $18,317,700 of purchases in the last loan when 125.9 per cent of the lower quota for that loan was reached.

IT WAS REPORTED that Hudson's Bay Company employees subscribed $28,950 to the ninth loan with 280 applications being received from staff members.

Possibly the highest percentage of quota achieved by any group of employees was that achieved by the employees at the Giant Yellowknife Gold Mines Ltd., were 74 of the 82 employees purchased $32,700 of bonds for 545 per cent of the $6,000 original objective set for the company.

IT SHOULD BE remembered too that only the restraints imposed by wartime conditions have prevented these disputes having been aired before this. Today labor's position is still strong. But at the same time business is also in a strong bargaining position. Now that there is not the pressure of war need to force manufacturers to keep their plants going most businesses are in a strong enough financial position that they can afford to close their plants down for lengthy periods of time.

INDUSTRIAL WAR of this kind is usually fought by one side trying to wear the other down, with both sides appealing to public opinion in the hope that it will force the other to bear on one side or the other. If there is no government interference victory will go to the side which can afford to outwait the other.

In other words if the unions have sufficient money and the employers have sufficient patience to stay on strike until the businesses cannot afford to keep their plants idle any longer, labor will win. If business has sufficient reserve capital to outwait the workers, business will win.

BOTH SIDES WANT government interference provided that interference will help their particular side. Both sides will use lobby and pressure groups on the government in an effort to get their sympathy.

These battles, which have already begun, and which will in all probability continue throughout the winter will probably be more important in determining the future welfare of this, and every other, country, than the battles which we have just finished in Europe and the Far East. They will be just as bitter, and, unless there is great judgment used by both sides and the government, they may become just about as bloody at times.

IT WILL BE WELL, then, before any of us, in bursts of unthinking and uninformed enthusiasm, stick our noses into this titanic struggle, that we be very careful to make sure that we possess all the facts necessary to make sound judgments and arrive at correct conclusions. It will probably be best if we all leave this battle to the unions, business and government officials who hear both sides, to make the necessary decisions.

Ilsley Declares Cabinet Power Is From Crown

OTTAWA, Nov. 13.—(CP)—Acting Prime Minister Ilsley said yesterday in the Commons that the authority of the government is not delegated by the House of Commons but is received from the Crown and the "true relationship between the House of Commons and the cabinet is a relationship of confidence."

Referring to a statement by John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, a few days ago that he was determined to ensure "that this country is governed by this House of Commons," Mr. Ilsley said that statement was "not historically or constitutionally correct." He added:

"THE HOUSE HAS NOT an inalienable right to the disclosure of all actions of the executive. Ministers may refuse to disclose matters if refusal to disclose is in the public interest and is so stated by the ministers.

"Authority has been cited in support of that proposition. The house must accept the decision of a minister or withdraw confidence from the government, which it can do at any time.

"THE AUTHORITY of the government is not delegated by the House of Commons; the authority of the government is received from the Crown. The membership of the government is not limited to members of the house. The true relationship of the House of Commons and the cabinet is a relationship of confidence.

"The essence of confidence is trust, not minute and detailed supervision of every act and every motive."

MR. ILSLEY SAID far more information was disclosed by the Canadian government, and had been during the war and was at present, than by any other government. The government prodused far more information than was the case in Britain.

Mr. Bracken replied that whatever the "technical position" was his party took the stand that the representatives of the people were entitled to "know what is going on and we are going to try to keep on finding out."

• • •

M. J. COLDWELL, CCF leader, disagreed with Mr. Ilsley's statement that the government derived its authority from the Crown and said responsible government meant the government was responsible to the elected representatives of the people.

Mr. Ilsley cited a section of the British North America Act dealing with the authority of executive government and added:

"The authority of the government is not delegated by the house. His Majesty's advisers are sworn in as advisers to the Crown. The government is responsible to Parliament, which I have admitted in every word of my speech, but that is a different thing from the doctrine that the government is a committee of the House of Commons or that it exercises authority delegated by the House of Commons. That is not so".

Use X-Rays New Haemophilia Treatment Reported to Medical Group

CINCINNATI, Nov. 13.—(AP)—A new treatment for haemophilia was reported yesterday to the 39th annual meeting of the Southern Medical Association.

IT INVOLVES USE of deeply-penetrating X-rays, applied in small doses to the region of the spleen, to promote clotting of the blood. Sufferers from haemophilia usually a hereditary disease, have an abnormal tendency to bleed both internally and externally because their blood lacks or is low in clotting power.

Describing results in two cases, doctors David I. Macht and Marcus Ostro of Sinai hospital, Baltimore, Md., said that while no permanent effects had been achieved, the blood of the haemophilia patients treated was made to clot in less than half the time previously required.

THE EFFECT WAS ONLY temporary, however, and the patients' blood gradually returned to its original condition after a couple of weeks.

The doctors said the work still was in the preliminary stage, but they added the study "is of interest as opening a new approach to the study of haemophilia, a condition for which no remedy is as yet known."

Farm Organizations Urge Province To Provide Electric Power at Cost

A joint committee of the United Farmers of Alberta and the Alberta Farmers' Union interviewed Premier Ernest Manning recently and presented a brief on rural electrification in Alberta.

The brief is to be presented to the annual convention of both the UFA and AFU for ratification and again presented to the provincial government for consideration.

IT IS FELT that the farm people of today are vitally interested in getting electric power and it is felt there is a tendency at the present time for the farmers to sign for electric power to any price without taking into consideration the cost. They are also of the opinion that electric power should be provided at cost because prices of farm products are based upon the lowest point at which the farmer will produce, and represent only cost of production.

THIS, IT IS CONTENDED, has detrimentally affected the standard of living, to the list of interests which profiteer at the expense of the Alberta farm people, and if allowed to continue unchecked it will add to the already overburden farmer in meeting his overhead obligations.

The committee is of the opinion a comprehensive scheme is needed in rural electrification and must cover the potential service areas of Alberta within a reasonable time, and pick out only the best districts that are reasonably settled and in a position to pay for the service cost.

IT IS ALSO FELT that efficient use of resources should be made and this would necessitate one controlling authority for the whole system, and could be under a provincial power commission.

The feeling is that an adequate and satisfactory system of electrification for Alberta can only be developed along the lines of public ownership, because only public ownership can or will, give service at cost, and that in this connection something has been learned by Ontario's development of its hydro-electric system which was placed under provincial power commission in 1907. This system has proven beyond doubt that it is the most feasible method to provide electric power to a large number of farmers at cost, it was stated.

THE TREND TODAY is for electric power and is being carried on by the various governmental bodies to supply cheap power to the people, and also Alberta has ample power resources for this purpose.

Therefore the A.F.U. and U.F.A. feel that the provincial government should bear part of the initial cost in constructing the rural lines, as has been done elsewhere and that the provincial government should make a grant-in-aid, equal to 50 per cent of the cost of constructing the rural lines, as a measure of aid to agriculture, and that all existing electric transmission lines and power sites necessary for the efficient development of the Alberta system be taken over by the power commission, with due compensation to present owners and also that this development be provincially owned and undertaken under the control of a public body similar to the Ontario hydro-electric power commission.

Last Canadian Recreational Centre For Veterans Opens New Quarters

Although the wars are over and although thousands of men are doffing their uniforms every month, there still remain thousands more for the demobilization has been for one reason or another delayed. Recreational centres, to which servicemen may turn for quiet relaxation and rest, have been closing all across Canada in view of the gradual decline in the number of men to be cared for.

ONLY ONE Canadian-operated recreational centre is left in Edmonton, the Navy and Wings club which has just opened new quarters on 101 street, slightly north of the Hudson's Bay Company store.

The new location of the club, which formerly occupied the ground floor of the Jackson block on Jasper avenue, is thought by its sponsors, the Air Force Mothers' Auxiliary, to be much more convenient, particularly for those veterans now being hospitalized, who, when released, may reach it from any city hospital without the bother of changing street cars.

It is housed in a former army mess purchased from the Northwest Air Command, but the decoration, and the homelike furniture which has always been a feature of the Wings club, have done its interior more cosy than any army hut can be pictured as being.

THERE THE HOSTESSES will welcome any serviceman still in uniform; there he can relax with a magazine, have a cup of tea, a game of billiards or find all the materials to write a letter home. All this in a friendly cozy atmosphere which might be chilled in roomier quarters.

The club has been closed since Sept. 30, when it was forced to leave the Jackson building by the new owner. However, the ladies are appreciative of the purchaser's patience in permitting them to remain on the premises for so long. In those quarters the club has entertained 65,614 servicemen in the course of the last year.

ALTHOUGH THERE are still many servicemen in the district who will be remaining in uniform for some time, the chief reason for the club's continued activity is the care of the wounded veterans at Col. Mewburn Pavilion and other city hospitals, according to Mrs. Hugh Nash, active president of the Air Mothers group.

At the Wings club these men can find a place to rest, to check parcels or to write letters. Their clothes can be mended and facilities are available for such homelike jobs as pressing pants, continued Mrs. Nash.

OTHER ACTIVITIES which will be centred around the club, will include the provision of parcels and letters to cheer the airmen at some of the morale-destroying lonely northern points along the routes of the Northwest Air Command. It has long been the policy of the club to provide these comforts, and now that the war is over that activity will be intensified.

Other authorities have expressed their desire that the club continue its work, the War Services Council paid for the building and for its removal from the air station to its present position.

THE CITY PROVIDES the grounds, rent free, and also supplies light and water at a generous rate. The gas company has allowed a discount for its services.

A tea marking the re-opening of the club was held on Saturday, Nov. 9 in the new premises.

Alter Regulations On Europe Parcels

OTTAWA, Nov. 13.—(CP)—Postmaster General Bertrand announced last night that effective immediately gift parcels to several European countries will no longer be limited to food, toilet articles, tobacco and clothing.

However, he pointed out that certain articles of value, such as new clothing, may be subject to import restrictions in the country of destination and senders should make sure the articles they post are exempt from such restrictions.

ELEVEN-POUND parcels, not exceeding $25 in value, can be sent to Belgium, Denmark, Finland, France, Greece, Luxembourg, The Netherlands, Norway, Sweden and Switzerland.

Four-pound parcels, not exceeding $25 in value, can be sent to Italy and the Vatican City.

Lt. Gray was a student at the University of Alberta before transferring to the University of British Columbia.

According to A. E. Ottewell, U. of A. registrar, he attended the university for the 1937-38 term and was registered in Arts and Science. The registrar remarked, "Lt. Gray was not a brilliant student, but he was a good one and cleaned up on all his courses during his term here."

After his one year at the university here, Lieut. Gray then attended the University of British Columbia.

Father and Son Are Re-United In Meeting Here

Father and son were reunited Sunday night at the local CNR station, when 12-year-old Phillip Paulson, released from a Japanese prison camp when that country capitulated, met his father, the Rev. Clifford T. Paulson, Three Hills, for the first time in more than five years.

THE MINISTER, who is now a teacher at the Three Hills Bible Institute, had been a missionary in China when the Japanese swooped down on that helpless country, though until Pearl Harbor had brought the Americans into the war they and their little mission had not been molested.

The mission was near Shanghai in Kiangsi province, the school which Phillip was attending was at Chefoo in Shantung province, which fell to the Japanese so rapidly that the Paulsons were unable to bring their son to the comparative safety of their home.

FOLLOWING THE Doolittle raid over Tokyo, many of the American fliers crashed in attempting a landing on the air base near where the missionaries were stationed, and Mr. Paulson rendered aid to those he could to get them away, and conducted funeral services for the many dead.

However, when the Japs learned that there was an American base near Shanjao they drove for it and the missionary with his wife and three other children, Keith, Blakely and Elaine, were forced to flee and leave Phillip at the mercy of his captors.

HAD THE JAPS known that he had helped the American fliers on his way, Mr. Paulson is sure they would have taken revenge on Phillip.

However they did not learn of it and the lad was reunited to his family again after his long absence when the CNR train arrived in Edmonton on Sunday night. He had not seen his little sister Elaine, since she had been born while he was at school.

Mr. Paulson, Blakely and Phillip were staying at the residence of Mr. Paulson's father at 1727 90 street, over the week-end and returned to Three Hills Monday.

The Road Ahead

The family, the church, business and trade unions all make rules which govern the lives and daily conduct of practically every member of our modern society.

Business makes rules, often without realizing it, which affect the behavior and conduct of four classes of persons—the people who invest their money in it, ordinarily referred to as shareholders, the persons from whom it acquires its raw materials or products, the persons to whom it sells its finished products, and the people for whom it provides an opportunity of doing something useful and earning a living.

THE TRADE UNION, which is the agency used by labor to strengthen its position when bargaining with employers, or businesses, makes rules for its members, and both directly and indirectly, makes rules which affect all those groups affected by the rules made by business.

The industrial unrest we see today then is the result of the inevitable conflict which was bound to arise between business and the trade union, both of which make rules which affect the same groups of persons. This conflict will continue until one or the other proves strong enough to over-ride the other or the government steps in to set out in just what spheres each one shall have the over-riding influence.

IT SHOULD BE remembered too that only the restraints imposed by wartime conditions have prevented these disputes having been aired before this. Today labor's position is still strong. But at the same time business is also in a strong bargaining position. Now that there is not the pressure of war need to force manufacturers to keep their plants going most businesses are in a strong enough financial position that they can afford to close their plants down for lengthy periods of time.

INDUSTRIAL WAR of this kind is usually fought by one side trying to wear the other down, with both sides appealing to public opinion in the hope that it will force the other to bear on one side or the other. If there is no government interference victory will go to the side which can afford to outwait the other.

In other words if the unions have sufficient money and the employers have sufficient patience to stay on strike until the businesses cannot afford to keep their plants idle any longer, labor will win. If business has sufficient reserve capital to outwait the workers, business will win.

BOTH SIDES WANT government interference provided that interference will help their particular side. Both sides will use lobby and pressure groups on the government in an effort to get their sympathy.

These battles, which have already begun, and which will in all probability continue throughout the winter will probably be more important in determining the future welfare of this, and every other, country, than the battles which we have just finished in Europe and the Far East. They will be just as bitter, and, unless there is great judgment used by both sides and the government, they may become just about as bloody at times.

IT WILL BE WELL, then, before any of us, in bursts of unthinking and uninformed enthusiasm, stick our noses into this titanic struggle, that we be very careful to make sure that we possess all the facts necessary to make sound judgments and arrive at correct conclusions. It will probably be best if we all leave this battle to the unions, business and government officials who hear both sides, to make the necessary decisions.

Thousand Sailors Riot in Honolulu Against Islanders

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

HONOLULU, Nov. 13.—(BUP)—One thousand sailors of the Honolulu air station armed with bayonets, clubs, stones and hammers rioted through residential section for two hours last night in what the sailors called retaliation for "unprovoked attacks" by islanders.

The outbreak followed a period of increasing tension between military forces in Honolulu and local residents in which soldiers and sailors charged that they had repeatedly been attacked by "gooks"—local residents.
